THE COLLEGE OF LAW

The College of Law was established in 1897. In December, 1896, President Andrew S. Draper had urged its organization to the Board of Trustees, stating "that the interests of the University imperatively demand that the Board shall take decided steps looking to the organization of a Law School." Upon his recommendation the School was established. It opened its doors to students in September, 1897. Although the College has been in operation barely over thirty years, it has spanned a remarkable transition period in legal education. In 1897 preparation for the Bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. Law school study had not yet met the full approval of the Bar. What law schools there were, had for the most part very low admission requirements. Some schools offered but a one year course, several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three year course.

In this College a three year course was established from the beginning; the curriculum was padded at first, however, with liberal arts work. Persons who had completed a high school course were admitted. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. Announcement was made in 1927 of a further advance in admission requirements. Beginning with January 1, 1929, the following persons only will be admitted as candidates for degrees: (a) graduates of colleges or universities of approved standing, or (b) students in the University of Illinois of senior standing who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

While a student, under present [1928] admission requirements, may complete his work in a minimum of five years, i. e., with two years of pre-law work and three years of law, he is advised to apply himself for three or four years in college before he begins the study of law. The prospective lawyer should have a liberal training; he should not hurry through his work. An added year or two in college will tend to broaden his horizon; further, it is highly desirable that he be well on his way to maturity before he begins the study of law, hence more time in college is valuable for the ripening process. With a six-year program in this University the student normally can secure two degrees.

PURPOSE

The aim of the College, it was said in one of the earlier announcements, is "to furnish its students with such training as will best fit them for the practice of the law." This remains the primary function, but in later years there have been brought into relief other purposes. The aim is to educate students for the practice of law, to develop professional character and to inspire an appreciation of the duties and responsibilities of a lawyer as a member of society. But not all who study law intend to practice it. Another purpose is to train a limited number of students for law teaching. Only the stronger students should be encouraged to enter into this important work, for of their number, principally, will come the future legal scholars and writers and they will shape the thinking of others. A recognized purpose of a law school is to promote legal scholarship and research. Finally, it is the purpose of a law school to train students for public service. It is a well known fact that most of our public men are recruited from the ranks of those who have been legally trained. The College of Law offers several courses which are well adapted for the training of students for that work.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building is modern Romanesque in style. It is built of Minnesota sandstone and has a tower 132 feet high. The first floor contains two large class rooms, a conference room and lockers for the students. The second floor contains one office, a faculty reading room and two large reading rooms which easily will accommodate two hundred fifty persons. The delivery room is open to the roof and is lighted by a dome of art glass. The entrance to the stacks is from this floor. The third floor contains the administrative and faculty offices, the court room, a small class room and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The law library contains 41,000 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, four sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States, England, and the various states, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and current periodicals. Besides an extensive collection of standard treatises and text-books there are 2,700 bound volumes of legal periodicals. The Library collections of the University contain about 674,286 volumes and 94,250 pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As A Regular Student

For admission as a regular student in September, 1928, an applicant must be matriculated and have 60 hours of credit in a college of this University; or have completed two full years of work as given at another college or university of recognized standing, as a matriculated student in such college or university; or have received by transfer 60 hours of university credit here.

Beginning with January 1, 1929, the following persons only will be admitted to the College of Law as candidates for degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing[1] who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this school may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools; but no credit will be given for private reading or correspondence study.

SIX-YEAR COMBINED CURRICULA

Thirty hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. This combination of curricula is known as the three-three combined curriculum. (See pp. 85-86 of the 1927-1928 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 101-102 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study list in his other college, as that college may require.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee....$10.00

Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of.................. 50.00

For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is.. 75.00

AVERAGE ANNUAL EXPENSES

The following are estimated average annual expenses for law students, exclusive of clothing and railroad fare. Only the immediate and fundamentally necessary expenses are included.

Fees	$100.00	to	$150.00
Books	30.00	to	50.00
Room Rent	81.00	to	180.00
Board	260.00	to	360.00
Washing	30.00	to	45.00
	$501.00	to	$785.00

[1] To obtain senior standing in the University of Illinois a student must have 94 hours of university credit.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Science (in Law)[1]

Candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in law must offer 130 hours of university credits; but courses open to university freshmen and sophomores will not, when taken by juniors or seniors, count for the degree, except by special recommendation of the College of Law. The required credits must include the following courses or their equivalents:

(a) Required of all candidates:

- Rhetoric 1, 2, six hours;
- University Latin, one year, for students not offering two years of high school Latin for entrance;
- Mathematics, or the Physical or Natural Sciences, 10 hours;
- Psychology or Philosophy (a course in Logic being required), 6 hours;
- Law, not less than 30 nor more than 40 hours.

(b) Additional requirements for students entering from a College of Liberal Arts and Sciences:

- Foreign Language (including the Latin prescribed above), English, Rhetoric (not counting Rhetoric 1 and 2), or Public Speaking, 20 hours (but in the case of a student offering for entrance three or more high school units of foreign language this requirement will be 12 hours).
- Two minors of at least 12 and 8 hours, respectively, in History, Political Science, Economics, Philosophy, Sociology, or Public Speaking.

(c) Additional requirements for students entering from a College of Commerce and Business Administration:

- Accountancy 1a, 1b, six hours;
- Business Organization and Operation 1, three hours;
- Economics 1, 3, 51, and 10, fourteen hours;
- Additional advanced courses in Economics or Accountancy (Economics 55 being for this purpose an advanced course), 6 hours;
- History, Political Science, Philosophy or Sociology, 9 hours;
- Foreign Language (including the Latin prescribed above), English, Rhetoric (not counting Rhetoric 1 and 2), or Public Speaking, 10 hours.

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who complete eighty-four hours of law work distributed over a period equal to three academic years.

[1] Students are no longer admitted to this curriculum but those registered in it are permitted to complete it.

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will also be granted to students in the four-year curriculum who shall have complied with the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Science in law and in addition shall have received credit for 56 hours in legal or other courses; provided that their total credits in law courses shall be not less than 86 hours, and provided that credits allowed in law courses in excess of 86 hours shall be confined to courses in public law or in the legal aspects of economic problems.

In either case the candidate must have pursued the courses of the first year, and Equity 1 of the second year, and have secured grades not lower than C in subjects aggregating at least three-fourths of his law work, prescribed or elective, taken at the University of Illinois and required for such degree.

DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAW (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students in the three-year curriculum who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out.

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students in the four-year curriculum who comply with the following conditions:

1. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Science in law.
2. Complete the work of the four-year law curriculum with a minimum average grade of B. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
3. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out.

RULES CONCERNING THESES

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on paper 8½x11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable. Credit is given upon examination in those courses in which examinations are held.

Special Examinations

Special examinations in law courses in which a student has failed are given only in rare instances and not as a matter of course. Permission to take special examinations may be granted only by the instructor offering the course with the approval of the Dean.

Special examinations are held during the week prior to the opening of the University in September, or, at the option of the instructor, at the next regular examination in the course, and will not ordinarily be given to law students other than seniors at any other time. Application should be made to the Secretary to the Dean in writing not later than July 1, following the failure.

A candidate for graduation must have completed by the beginning of his final semester (or summer session) all studies required for the degree, except those to be taken in class during that semester (or summer session). It is provided, however, that special examinations (in those cases where permission to take them has been granted) to remove failures incurred during the preceding semester may be taken at any time before the beginning of the tenth week of a student's final semester; or, if the final period of attendance is a summer session, at any time before the beginning of the fifth week.

Probation

A student in the College of Law whose scholastic work in the opinion of the faculty is unsatisfactory, may be placed upon probation by action of the Council of Administration and if in neither of the next two sessions for which he is registered he fails to make a passing grade in a minimum of nine hours he is dropped from the College.

A student in the College of Law who fails in any semester to carry at least six hours of the work for which he was regularly registered (military and physical training not included) is dropped.

Grades

The grades given at the end of each course are as follows: "A," excellent; "B," good; "C," fair; "D," poor; "E," failure.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the college, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full tuition and four scholarships covering half tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The four full-tuition scholarships for the year 1928-1929 were awarded to the following students:

A. James Casner
Ralph Charles Murphy
Richard McCutcheon Keck
Vaille Dry

The four half-tuition scholarships for the year 1928-1929 were awarded to the following students:

Jay Jacob Alloy
Robert Verne Baker
Warren Walter Kriebel
Robert Zachariah Hickman

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at the College of Law, University of Illinois, in the year 1904. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester. The following were elected to membership from the class of 1928:

Orville Foreman
Casil Harold Friedman
Alton Gifford Hall
Merrill Hearst Johnston
Herbert Spencer Kamin
Bernita Jewell Long
Norman Arthur Miller

ILLINOIS LAW REVIEW

The Illinois Law Review is a legal magazine which is published jointly by the University of Illinois, Northwestern University, and the University of Chicago. It is devoted to the study and investigation of the law. Particular attention is given to problems of interest to the bar of Illinois.

The Review is edited by faculty representatives and a board of student editors (chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship) from the three universities concerned. Its publication forms a part of the educational program of this college.

INSTRUCTION IN PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

The criticism frequently urged against law schools that they do not give practical training in practice and procedure has been met by the establishment of suitable courses aimed to give skill and facility in the application of legal rules. This work is covered by several special courses.

Instruction is given in the use of law books, where the student is drilled in legal bibliography and the use of digests and reports. The student is thoroughly initiated into the study of procedure in his first year in the course Procedure I which deals with the common law forms of action. In Procedure II the fundamentals in good pleading are studied. The common and peculiar features of the common law and equity systems are analyzed, noting what features have been adopted, rejected or modified by the code system. In Procedure III a study is made of the various steps taken in a civil action from the issuance of process to the satisfaction of judgement. The course in Evidence deals with admission and exclusion of evidence, together with such related matters as the burden of proof, presumptions, and the relative function of the court and jury.

The Practice Court is a forum in which students are required to prosecute and defend contested issues of law and fact, simple and complicated, and producing their own witnesses and documents of evidence. Students are thrown on their own resources in the selection of a forum, a remedy and the means of making the selected remedy effective, being taught not only to apply the principles learned in the course Procedure III, but to relate all branches of the law previously studied, to discover some not given special treatment, and to develop constructive, along with analytical powers. The Practice Court is also designed to teach the fundamentals of advocacy in the belief that a better bar and bench, with higher ideals, can be produced by laying these important foundations under skilled guidance in the law school than by leaving them to be picked up at random in the various types of law offices and under the varying conditions of modern practice. Problems in office practice are also given to develop constructive thinking, and the ability to use abstract knowledge.

PRESCRIBED AND SUGGESTED COURSES

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with great care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the three-three combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements and at least one hundred hours of credit before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum. Students registered in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration are strongly urged not to commence law study before the senior year.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following courses: Accountancy; Economics, Principles of Economics, Money and Banking, Corporation Management and Finance, Labor Problems, Public Finance and Taxation; Political Science, American Government, State Government, Municipal Government, International Law and Principles of Jurisprudence; Philosophy, Logic, Introduction to Philosophy and Political and Social Ethics; History, English History, History of the United States, Constitutional History of England and Constitutional History of the United States; Psychology; Sociology; English, Rhetoric and Public Speaking.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

Note: In addition to the program for which a second or a third year student registers, he is asked to hold open the ten o'clock hour on Saturdays during the first semester for quizzes to be scheduled during the course of the semester.

READING COURSES

In order to insure an acquaintance with some of the fundamental matters of legal theory, and with a part, at least, of that history of courts and of famous judges which furnishes a necessary background for an appreciative study of law, and also in order to stimulate an interest in the general literature of the profession, the College of Law offers the following reading courses:

Reading Course I, required of students in the first year. Students of the first year are required to read and pass an examination covering the following books and articles. One hour of credit is given. There are no regular class meetings in this course, but students are expected to report to the instructor at specified times as to the progress of their reading.

Baldwin, The Young Man and the Law
Hicks, Men and Books, Chapters 3, 4, 5, 6.
Dillon, Bentham's Influence in the Reforms of the Nineteenth Century, Chapter 12, Laws and Jurisprudence of England and America
Morgan, The Study of Law, Chapters 1 to 8
Pound, Introduction to Law
Holmes, The Path of the Law (Collected Legal Papers 167)
Bowen, Progress in the Administration of Justice During the Victorian Period. Select Essays, etc., No. 16
Hagan, Eight Great American Lawyers

Reading Course II, optional for students of the second and later years. In this course selection is made from among the following books after consultation with the instructor in charge of the course. One hour of credit is given upon passing an examination on the books read.

Maine, Ancient Law
Jenks, Short History of English Law
Cardozo, The Nature of the Judicial Process
Cardozo, The Growth of the Law
Gray, Nature and Source of Law
Dillon, The Laws and Jurisprudence of England and America
Warren, History of the American Bar
Gest, The Lawyer in Literature
Storey, The Reform of Legal Procedure
Garofalo, Criminology
Gibbon's History, Chapter 44
Continental Legal History Series
  No. I, General Survey, pp. 1-199
  No. XI, Progress of Continental Law in the Nineteenth Century
Warren, The Supreme Court in United States History

Reading Course III, optional for students of the second and later years. Credit may also be gained by a further choice from Reading Course II or for general or historical reading, selected with the advice of the instructor, in particular fields of the law, such as Criminal Law and Criminology, Legal History, Jurisprudence, Equity, Property, and Evidence. But no more than two hours of credit may be gained in optional Reading Courses II and III.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW

The College of Law was established in 1897. In December, 1896, President Andrew S. Draper had urged its organization to the Board of Trustees, stating "that the interests of the University imperatively demand that the Board shall take decided steps looking to the organization of a Law School." Upon his recommendation the School was established. It opened its doors to students in September, 1897. Although the College has been in operation barely over thirty years, it has spanned a remarkable transitional period in legal education. In 1897 preparation for the Bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. Law school study had not yet met the full approval of the Bar. What law schools there were, had for the most part very low admission requirements. Some schools offered but a one year course, several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three year course.

In this College a three year course was established from the beginning; the curriculum was padded at first, however, with liberal arts work. Persons who had completed a high school course were admitted. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years.

Finally, on January 1, 1929, the requirement was advanced to admit only the following persons as candidates for degrees: (a) graduates of colleges or universities of approved standing, or (b) students in the University of Illinois of senior standing who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the College is to educate students through serious professional work for the practice of law. To that end it seeks to promote legal scholarship, to develop character, and to inspire an appreciation of the duties and responsibilities of a lawyer as a member of society. But not all who study law intend to practice it. Another purpose is to train a limited number of students for law teaching. Only the stronger students should be encouraged to enter into this important work, for from their number, principally, will come the future legal scholars and writers and they will aid in shaping the thinking of others. A recognized purpose of a law school is to promote legal scholarship and research. Finally, it is the purpose of a law school to train students for public service. It is a well known fact that most of our public men are recruited from the ranks of those who have been legally trained. The College of Law offers several courses which are well adapted for the training of students for that work.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building is modern Romanesque in style. It is built of Minnesota sandstone and has a tower 132 feet high. The first floor contains two large class rooms, a conference room and lockers for the students. The second floor contains one office, a faculty reading room and two large reading rooms which will accommodate two hundred fifty persons. The library delivery room which is on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted by a dome of art glass. The entrance to the stacks is from this floor. The third floor contains administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains 43,000 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, five sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States and the various states, of Great Britain and most of the other portions of the British Empire, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and current periodicals. Besides extensive collections of standard treatises, text-books and bar association reports, there are 2,900 bound volumes of legal periodicals. The Library collections of the University contain about 758,510 volumes and 95,065 pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As A Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing[1] who are permitted to select courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this school may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools; but no credit will be given for private reading or correspondence study.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See pp. 89-90 of the 1928-1929 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 106-107 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study list in his other college, as that college may require.

[1] To obtain senior standing in the University of Illinois a student must have 94 hours of university credit.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00

Average Annual Expenses

The following are estimated average annual expenses for law students, exclusive of clothing and railroad fare. Only the immediate and fundamentally necessary expenses are included.

Fees	$100.00	to	$150.00
Books	30.00	to	50.00
Room Rent	81.00	to	180.00
Board	260.00	to	360.00
Washing	30.00	to	45.00
	$501.00	to	$785.00

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who complete eighty-four hours of law work distributed over a period equal to three academic years. During that period, as a condition to graduation, the candidate must have pursued the courses of the first year, and Equity I of the second year, and have secured grades of not lower than C in subjects aggregating at least three-fourths of his law work, prescribed or elective, taken at the University of Illinois and required for such degree.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students in the three-year curriculum who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.

2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on paper 8½x11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable. Credit is given upon examination in those courses in which examinations are held.

Requirements as to Scholarship

A student in the College of Law is placed on probation under the following conditions: (1) if he fails to make a passing grade in a minimum of ten hours (six hours in the summer session) of the work for which he is registered in any semester; or (2) if, being registered in ten hours or less in any semester or in six hours or less in the summer session, he fails to pass the entire number of hours for which he is registered; or (3) if he falls below C in more than one-third of the work for which he is registered in any semester or summer session without at least two hours of A or B in the courses for which he is registered (military, physical training, and required work in hygiene not included).

A student thus placed on probation will be dropped from the University: (1) if he fails to make a passing grade in a minimum of ten hours (six hours in the summer session) of the work for which he is registered in either of the next two sessions for which he is enrolled (provided that, if he is permitted to register for ten hours or less in a semester or six hours in a summer session, he must pass all his work); or (2) if at the end of his first session on probation he fails to make himself clear of probation.

A student will be dropped if he fails in any semester to carry at least six hours (three hours in the summer session) of the work for which he is regularly registered (military, physical training, and the required work in hygiene not included).

Grades

The grades given at the end of each course are as follows: "A," excellent; "B," good; "C," fair; "D," poor; "E," failure.

Honors

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the college, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full tuition and four scholarships covering half tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The four full-tuition scholarships for the year 1929-1930 were awarded to the following students:

Ralph Charles Murphy
Jay Jacob Alloy
Mason John Clarke
Frederic Lee Kirgis

The four half-tuition scholarships for the year 1929-1930 were awarded to the following students:

Richard McCutcheon Keck
Wilma Elizabeth Busenbark
David McColl Hudson
John Vasken Mooradian

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at the College of Law, University of Illinois, in the year 1904. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester. The following were elected to membership from the class of 1929:

- William Sereno Bodman
- Lena Mauria Bernstein
- Andrew James Casner
- Vaille Dry
- Paul Herman Ferguson
- Robert Condit Kewley
- Francis Joseph Koch
- Warren Walter Kriebel
- Charles Clemens Ulrich

ILLINOIS LAW REVIEW

The Illinois Law Review is a legal magazine which is published jointly by the University of Illinois, Northwestern University, and the University of Chicago. It is devoted to the study and investigation of the law. Particular attention is given to problems of interest to the bar of Illinois.

The Review is edited by faculty representatives and a board of student editors (chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship) from the three universities concerned. Its publication forms a part of the educational program of this college.

INSTRUCTION IN PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

The criticism frequently urged against law schools that they do not give practical training in practice and procedure has been met by the establishment of suitable courses aimed to give skill and facility in the application of legal rules. This work is covered by several special courses.

Instruction is given in the use of law books, where the student is drilled in legal bibliography and the use of digests and reports. The student is thoroughly initiated into the study of procedure in his first year in the course Procedure I which deals with the common law forms of action. In Procedure II the fundamentals in good pleading are studied. The common and peculiar features of the common law and equity systems are analyzed, noting what features have been adopted, rejected or modified by the code system. In Procedure III a study is made of the various steps taken in a civil action from the issuance of process to the satisfaction of judgment. The course in Evidence deals with admission and exclusion of evidence, together with such related matters as the burden of proof, presumptions, and the relative function of the court and jury.

The Practice Court is a forum in which students are required to prosecute and defend contested issues of law and fact, simple and complicated, and producing their own witnesses and documents of evidence. Students are thrown on their own resources in the selection of a forum, a remedy and the means of making the selected remedy effective, being taught not only to apply the principles learned in the course Procedure III, but to relate all branches of the law previously studied, to discover some not given special treatment, and to develop constructive, along with analytical powers. The Practice Court is also designed to teach the fundamentals of advocacy in the belief that a better bar and bench, with higher ideals, can be produced by laying these important foundations under skilled guidance in the law school than by leaving them to be picked up at random in the various types of law offices and under the varying conditions of modern practice. Problems in office practice are also given to develop constructive thinking, and the ability to use abstract knowledge.

PRESCRIBED AND SUGGESTED COURSES

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with great care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements and at least one hundred hours of credit before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following courses: Accountancy; Economics: Principles of Economics, Money and Banking, Corporation Management and Finance, Labor Problems, Public Finance and Taxation; Political Science: American Government, State Government, Municipal Government, International Law and Principles of Jurisprudence; Philosophy: Logic, Introduction to Philosophy and Political and Social Ethics; History: English History, History of the United States, Constitutional History of England and Constitutional History of the United States; Psychology; Sociology; English, Rhetoric and Public Speaking.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

Associate Professor Fuller

33. Administrative Law.—Case book to be announced. This course is devoted to the study of the operation of such administrative commissions as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Radio Commission and the various state boards regulating public utilities, taxation, etc. Attention is also directed to the general problems of administrative justice. The course is open only to students who have an average in their law work of 3.5 or over. II, (2). Associate Professor Holt

34. Legislation.—Problems of legislative drafting and the general principles of statutory interpretation. This course is open only to advanced students who have an average in their law work of 3.5 or over. II, (1).
Professor Britton

35. Procedure III.—A study of the systems and jurisdiction of courts, state and federal, and of the various phases of a litigation in them from the issuance of process to the satisfaction of judgment, excepting a study of pleading and of the principles of evidence. As the mechanics of various types of law suits are studied from the functional viewpoint, comparisons are made of the procedure in many jurisdictions, with a view of discovering fundamental principles. Hinton, Cases on Trial Practice, and selected cases. I, (4).

Professor McCaskill

36. Procedure IV.—Practice Court. In this course practical exercises are given in the commencement, maturing, and trial of cases. The work is so planned that the student, while acquiring a familiarity with the technique of practice, develops powers of constructive thinking in determining the relationships between law and facts, between the various courses in substantive law which for purposes of effective teaching have been segregated, and between substantive law and procedure. Problems in office practice are given. II, (4).
Professor Johnson

(37. Criminal Procedure.—Keedy, Cases on the Administration of the Criminal Law. (2). Given in Summer Session 1929; not given 1929-1930.
Professor Johnson)

38. Current Problems in the Administration of Justice.—A consideration of some of the problems connected with the administration of justice. Selected material. I, (1). Professor Harno

39a-39b. Thesis Course.—This course is open to students who are candidates for the J.D. degree, during the academic year next preceding their graduation. I, (1); II, (1). Members of the staff

45. Use of Law Books.—Practice in the library in the use of statutes, reports, digests, encyclopedias, annotated cases, citation books, reference tables, indices, and textbooks. II, (1). Professor Weisiger

57. Legal Problems IV.—Legal problems to be assigned. II, (1). Prerequisite: Legal Problems I or II, two years of law work and at least an average grade of 4. in law courses. Associate Professor Holt

Note: In addition to the program for which a second or a third year student registers, he is asked to hold open the eight o'clock hour on Wednesdays during the first semester for quizzes to be scheduled during the course of the semester.

READING COURSES

In order to insure an acquaintance with some of the fundamental matters of legal theory, and with a part, at least, of that history of courts and of famous judges which furnishes a necessary background for an appreciative study of law, and also in order to stimulate an interest in the general literature of the profession, the College of Law offers the following reading courses:

Reading Course I, required of students in the first year. Students of the first year are required to read and to pass an examination covering certain of the following books and articles. One hour of credit is given. There are no regular class meetings in this course, but students are expected to report to the instructor at specified times as to the progress of their reading.

Hicks, Men and Books, Chapters 3, 4, 5, 6
Dillon, Bentham's Influence in the Reforms of the Nineteenth Century, Chapter 12. Laws and Jurisprudence of England and America
Morgan, The Study of Law, Chapters 1 to 8
Pound, Introduction to Law
Holmes, The Path of the Law (Collected Legal Papers 167)
Bowen, Progress in the Administration of Justice During the Victorian Period. Select Essays, etc. No. 16
Bryce, A Comparison of the History of Legal Development at Rome and in England. Select Essays, etc. No. 10
Kent, An American Law Student of One Hundred Years Ago. Select Essays, etc. No. 21
Bolland, The Year Books
Holdsworth, Charles Dickens as a Legal Historian
Smith, State Statute and Common Law; Chapter III, A General View of European Legal History

Reading Course II, optional for students of the second and later years. In this course selection is made from among the following books after consultation with the instructor in charge of the course. One hour of credit is given upon passing an examination on the books read.

Maine, Ancient Law
Cardozo, The Nature of the Judicial Process
Cardozo, The Growth of the Law
Gray, The Nature and Sources of the Law
Dillon, The Laws and Jurisprudence of England and America
Warren, History of the American Bar
Gest, The Lawyer in Literature
Storey, The Reform of Legal Procedure
Garofalo, Criminology
Warren, The Supreme Court in United States History

Reading Course III, optional for students of the second and later years. Credit may also be gained by a further choice from Reading Course II or for general or historical reading, selected with the advice of the instructor, in particular fields of the law, such as Criminal Law and Criminology, Legal History, Jurisprudence, Equity, Property, and Evidence. But no more than two hours of credit may be gained in optional Reading Courses II and III.

SUMMER SESSION, 1929

June 17 to August 10

S18. Wills and Administration.—Testamentary capacity and intent; the various types of testamentary dispositions; rules governing the execution, revocation and republication of written wills; devolution of property in intestacy; grant and revocation of letters of probate and administration; rights and powers of personal representatives; discharge of liabilities of the estate; retainer, payment and refunding of legacies and distributive shares. Costigan, Cases on Wills, Descent and Administration. (2½). Professor Schnebly

S34. Legislation.—The purpose is to bring before the student certain fundamentals in the growth of the law through legislation; to give him an acquaintance with the mechanics of law making; and to examine the leading principles of statutory construction and interpretation. (1).

Professor Johnson

S37. Criminal Procedure.—Deals with the administration of criminal law from the arrest to the end of the proceeding in a court of review, with some consideration of the power and effect of executive clemency. Keedy, Cases on Administration of the Criminal Law. (2½). Professor Johnson

S50. Reading Course II.—In this course selection is made from list of books after consultation with the instructor in charge of the course. There are no regular class meetings but students are expected to report to the instructor at specified times as to the progress of their reading (1).
Professor Schnebly

S51. Reading Course III.—Credit also may be gained by a further choice from Reading Course II or for general or historical reading selected with the advice of the instructors in charge of the course, in particular fields of the law, such as Legal History, Jurisprudence, Criminal Law and Criminology, Equity, Property and Evidence. (1). Professor Goble

S53. Trade Regulation.—What is privileged and unprivileged conduct by a business as against its competitors? To what extent and in what manner may it influence customers of a competitor? May a wholesaler fix prices for the retailer or require that the retailer shall not deal in goods of a competitor? To what extent is the good will of a firm protected against infringement by others? What is there in a name? Is a business under a duty not to appropriate the name of another? These and other problems under the common law, and under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, the Clayton Act, and the Federal Trade Commission Act will be considered in this course. (2½).
Professor Goble

COLLEGE OF LAW

In his recommendations to the Board of Trustees in December 1896, President Andrew S. Draper urged the establishment of a law school. Upon his recommendation the College of Law was organized and opened in September, 1897. From the beginning, a three year course was established to which persons who had completed the work of accredited high schools were admitted. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work and in 1915 it was increased further to two years. Since January 1, 1929, admission has been granted only to graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing and to students in the University of Illinois of senior standing who were permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science. In September 1931, a scholarship requirement of a C average in undergraduate work as a further condition governing the entrance of seniors in the University will go into effect.

While the primary purpose of the College is to train students for the practice of law, it seeks also to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation for the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire the consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of the law and in improving its administration. To a limited number of students of high scholarship it offers opportunity for training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

THE LAW BUILDING

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota limestone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms, a conference room, and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred and fifty persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains 44,800 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, six sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States and the various states, of Great Britain and most of the other portions of the British Empire, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and current periodicals. Besides extensive collections of standard treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, there are 3,400 bound volumes of legal periodicals. The Library collections of the University contain about 793,284 volumes, including the catalogued pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing[1] who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.[2]

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this school may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent, or, where the literal system is employed, a letter above the passing mark. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 95 of the 1929-1930 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 111-112 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

[1] To obtain senior standing in the University of Illinois a student must have 94 hours of university credit.

[2] On September 1, 1931, an additional requirement bearing on the admission of seniors in the University becomes effective. After that date the following will be admitted:

1. Graduates of Colleges and Universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00

The average expense of a law student is estimated to be somewhere between $800 and $900 a year.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who complete eighty-four hours of law work distributed over a period equal to three academic years. During that period, as a condition to graduation, the candidate must have pursued the courses of the first year, and Equity I of the second year, and have secured grades of not lower than C in subjects aggregating at least three-fourths of his law work, prescribed or elective, taken at the University of Illinois and required for such degree.[1]

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

[1] On January 1, 1932, a new graduation requirement reading as follows becomes effective:

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University:[1]

(1) If at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student, who at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this College, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

[1] Those students who are candidates for degrees in February, June, August, or October in 1931 are governed by the scholarship requirements as published in the announcement of the College of Law for 1929-1930 at pp. 10-11.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the college, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Thirty scholarships have been made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Department of Students' Aid; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Loan Fund; First Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; James R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at the College of Law, University of Illinois, in the year 1904. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

ILLINOIS LAW REVIEW

The Illinois Law Review is a legal magazine which is published jointly by the University of Illinois, Northwestern University, and the University of Chicago. It is devoted to the study and investigation of the law. Particular attention is given to problems of interest to the Bar of Illinois.

The Review is edited by faculty representatives and a board of student editors (chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship) from the three universities concerned. Its publication forms a part of the educational program of this college.

PRESCRIBED AND SUGGESTED COURSES

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with great care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements and at least one hundred hours of credit before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following courses: Accountancy; Economics: Principles of Economics, Money and Banking, Corporation Management and Finance, Labor Problems, Public Finance and Taxation; Political Science: American Government, State Government, Municipal Government, International Law and Principles of Jurisprudence; Philosophy: Logic, Introduction to Philosophy and Political and Social Ethics; History: English History, History of the United States, Constitutional History of England and Constitutional History of the United States; Latin; Psychology; Sociology; English; Rhetoric; Public Speaking.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

Note: In addition to the program for which a second or a third year student registers, he is asked to hold open the eight o'clock hour on Mondays during the first semester for quizzes to be scheduled during the course of the semester.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

The student is initiated into the study of procedure in his first year in the course Procedure I which deals with the common law forms of action. In Procedure II the fundamentals in good pleading are studied. The common and peculiar features of the common law and equity systems are analyzed, noting what features have been adopted, rejected or modified by the code system. In Procedure III a study is made of the various steps taken in a civil action from the issuance of process to the satisfaction of judgment. The course in Evidence deals with admission and exclusion of evidence, together with such related matters as the burden of proof, presumptions, and the relative function of the court and jury.

The Practice Court is a forum in which students are required to prosecute and defend contested issues of law and fact, simple and complicated, and producing their own witnesses and documents of evidence. Students are thrown on their own resources in the selection of a forum, a remedy and the means of making the selected remedy effective, being taught not only to apply the principles learned in the course Procedure III, but to relate all branches of the law previously studied, to discover some not given special treatment, and to develop constructive, along with analytical powers. The Practice Court is also designed to teach the fundamentals of advocacy in the belief that a better bar and bench, with higher ideals, can be produced by laying these important foundations under skilled guidance in the law school than by leaving them to be picked up at random under the varying conditions of modern practice.

COLLEGE OF LAW

In his recommendations to the Board of Trustees in December 1896, President Andrew S. Draper urged the establishment of a law school. Upon his recommendation the Law School was organized and opened in September 1897. From the beginning, a three year course was established to which persons who had completed the work of accredited high schools were admitted. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work and in 1915 it was increased further to two years. Since January 1, 1929, admission has been granted only to graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing and to students in the University of Illinois of senior standing who were permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science. In September 1931, a scholarship requirement of a C average in undergraduate work went into effect as a further condition governing entrance to the law school of seniors in the University.

While the primary purpose of the Law School is to train students for the practice of law, it seeks also to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation for the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire the consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of the law and in improving its administration. To a limited number of students of high scholarship the School offers opportunity for training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota limestone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms, a conference room, and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred fifty persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains 47,500 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, six sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States and the various states, of Great Britain and most of the other portions of the British Empire, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and current periodicals. Besides extensive collections of standard treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, there are 3,600 bound volumes of legal periodicals. The Library collections in Urbana contain 798,183 volumes and 214,000 pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing[1] having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this school may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent, or, where the literal system is employed, a letter above the passing mark. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 99 of the 1930-1931 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 115-116 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the College of Law may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the dean of the College of Law as to the course to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to the regulations of that College.

[1] To obtain senior standing in the University of Illinois a student must have 94 hours of university credit.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
ncidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00

The average expense of a law student is estimated to be somewhere between $800 and $900 a year.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the deree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject aproved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him s to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November

1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University:

(1) If at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student, who at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this College, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the College, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Thirty scholarships have been made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Department of Students' Aid; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Loan Fund; First Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; James R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1904. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

ILLINOIS LAW REVIEW

The Illinois Law Review is a legal magazine which is published jointly by the University of Illinois, Northwestern University, and the University of Chicago. It is devoted to the study and investigation of the law. Particular attention is given to problems of interest to the Bar of Illinois.

The Review is edited by faculty representatives and a board of student editors (chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship) from the three universities concerned. Its publication forms a part of the educational program of this College.

PRESCRIBED AND SUGGESTED COURSES

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with great care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements and at least one hundred hours of credit before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following courses: Accountancy; Economics: Principles of Economics, Money and Banking, Corporation Management and Finance, Labor Problems, Public Finance and Taxation; Political Science: American Government, State Government, Municipal Government, International Law and Principles of Jurisprudence; Philosophy: Logic, Introduction to Philosophy and Political and Social Ethics; History: English History, History of the United States, Constitutional History of England and Constitutional History of the United States; Latin; Psychology; Sociology; English; Rhetoric; Public Speaking.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished through giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in these fields, the opportunity to elect in them separate and advance courses.

COLLEGE OF LAW

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. But as a diversity of types and methods of training, with varying degrees of emphasis, are included under the general title education, so is the situation in legal education. The faculty of this School seeks among its objectives to impress on students the value of learning to think clearly and to the point, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire the consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers opportunity for training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota limestone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms, a conference room, and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred fifty persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains 48,800 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, six sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States and the various states, of Great Britain and other portions of the British Empire, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and legal services. Besides extensive collections of standard treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, there are 3,600 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred eighty current periodicals are received during the year. The Library collections in Urbana contain 800,000 volumes and 214,000 pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent, or, where the literal system is employed, a letter above the passing mark. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 109 of the 1931-1932 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 129-130 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the College of Law may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the course to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to the regulations of that College.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00

The average expense of a law student is estimated to be somewhere between $600 and $700 a year.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University:

(1) If at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student, who at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this College, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the College, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Thirty scholarships have been made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Department of Students' Aid; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Loan Fund; First Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; James R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1904. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

REQUIRED WORK

PRE-LEGAL

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with great care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

PROFESSIONAL

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished through giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in them separate and advanced courses.

COLLEGE OF LAW

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. But as a diversity of types and methods of training, with varying degrees of emphasis, are included under the general title education, so is the situation in legal education. The faculty of this School seeks among its objectives to impress on students the value of learning to think clearly and to the point, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire the consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers opportunity for training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota limestone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms, a conference room, and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred fifty persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains 50,000 volumes including all the reports of the state courts of last resort and the state intermediate courts, six sets of reports of the United States Supreme Court, the reports of the subordinate federal courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, Australian, and Canadian reports. It contains the current statute law of the United States and the various states, of Great Britain and other portions of the British Empire, and over 4,000 volumes of the older compilations and session laws. It also contains the leading sets of American and English selected case series, encyclopedias, digests, and legal services. Besides extensive collections of standard treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, there are 3,700 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred sixty current periodicals are received during the year. The Library collections in Urbana contain over 870,000 volumes and 230,000 pamphlets. All collections are available to law students.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent, or, where the literal system is employed, a letter above the passing mark. Students from other schools may in special cases be given advanced standing upon examination on subjects taken by them in such schools.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 91 of the 1932-1933 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 106-107 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the College of Law may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the course to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to the regulations of that College.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the College of Law are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00

The average expense of a law student is estimated to be somewhere between $600 and $700 a year.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the College of Law, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the College of Law after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the College of Law or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University:

(1) If at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student, who at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this College, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the College of Law (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the College, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Thirty scholarships have been made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Department of Students' Aid; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Loan Fund; First Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; James R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1902. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

REQUIRED WORK

PRE-LEGAL

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with car and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College o Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Busines Administration and the College of Law must exercise care to compl with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in whic their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete al of these requirements before entering the College of Law in order tha they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the la curriculum.

PROFESSIONAL

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student' full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may ente upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplishe through giving substantial primary courses open to all students an designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselve only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wis further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in the separate and advanced courses.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards bearing on legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council on Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School has advanced its standards even more rapidly than the general movement. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929 and 1931 further advances were made to the present requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing, and (2) Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of learning how to make discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire a consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers possibilities of training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota limestone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains approximately 52,000 volumes including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states and Great Britain; it contains over 4,000 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 3,900 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred sixty periodicals are received currently.

Law students may also use the General University Library which has a collection of over 898,600 volumes and 235,000 pamphlets.

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of the students.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar is directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schools which comply with the above standards and those which do not, and to make such publications available so far as possible to intending law students.

In compliance with the policy announced by the American Bar Association in 1921, we recommend the establishment in each state, where none now exist, of opportunities for a collegiate training, free or at moderate cost, so that all deserving young men and women seeking admission to the bar may obtain an adequate preliminary education; and that the several states be urged, through the Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar, to provide at stated times and places for pre-legal examinations to be held by the university of the state or by the Board of Law Examiners thereof for those applicants for admission to the bar obliged to make up their preliminary qualifications outside of accredited institutions of learning.

This Law School is approved by the Council on Legal Education of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the aforegoing standards. It also is approved by and is a charter member of the Association of American Law Schools, the only other national accrediting agency for law schools.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the College of Law until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent, or, where the literal system is employed, a letter above the passing mark.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 96 of the 1933-1934 register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 111-112 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to the regulations of that School.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

The principal fees in the Law School are:

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
Incidental fee. All students, excepting those holding scholarships, pay, each semester, an incidental fee of	50.00
For students, not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00
Diploma fee	10.00

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words.

The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University:

(1) If at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student, who at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this School only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this School, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the College, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the Law School both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Thirty scholarships have been made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war.

HARKER SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

Judge O. A. Harker, Professor of Law, Emeritus, who was Dean of the College of Law from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-21, has endowed two annual prizes: $100 to the senior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the three years in which he was registered; and $50 to the junior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the two years in which he was registered.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society

organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1902. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors, chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship from among the students of this Law School, prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This work forms a part of the educational program of the School.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all and entitles a student to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All of the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Department of Students' Aid; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Loan Fund; First Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; James R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

REQUIRED WORK

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

PROFESSIONAL

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

The courses of the second and third years are elective.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished through giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in them separate and advanced courses.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards bearing on legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council on Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School has advanced its standards even more rapidly than the general movement. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929 and 1931 further advances were made to the present requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing, and (2) Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of learning how to make discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire a consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers possibilities of training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

THE LAW BUILDING

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota sandstone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms and lockers for students. On the second floor is one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 53,200 volumes including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states and Great Britain; it contains over 4,000 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 4,000 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred fifty periodicals are received currently.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes.

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' uration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their tudies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working ours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of he students.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving heir entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance nd influence with the whole student body.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the ompensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not epend on the number of students or on the fees received.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduaion from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the ar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examination y public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar is irected to publish from time to time the names of those law schools hich comply with the above standards and those which do not, and o make such publications available so far as possible to intending aw students.

In compliance with the policy announced by the American Bar Asociation in 1921, we recommend the establishment in each state, here none now exist, of opportunities for a collegiate training, free r at moderate cost, so that all deserving young men and women eeking admission to the bar may obtain an adequate preliminary eduation; and that the several states be urged, through the Council on egal Education and Admission to the Bar, to provide at stated times nd places for pre-legal examinations to be held by the university of e state or by the Board of Law Examiners thereof for those appliants for admission to the bar obliged to make up their preliminary ualifications outside of accredited institutions of learning.

This Law School is approved by the Council on Legal Education f the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoing tandards. It also is approved by, and is a charter member of, the Asociation of American Law Schools, the only other national accreditng agency for law schools.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law egrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having t least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses n law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor f Science.

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent (or where the literal system is employed, a letter) above the passing mark.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 97 of the 1934-1935 Register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 111-112 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to the regulations of that School.

UNIVERSITY FEES AND EXPENSES

he principal fees in the Law School are:

Iatriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee	$10.00
ncidental fee. All students who are residents of Illinois, excepting those holding scholarships, pay each semester an incidental fee of	50.00 or students who are not residents of Illinois, the incidental fee each semester is	75.00
raduation fee	10.00

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, aving studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 4 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those redits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comly with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the deree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to e proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. 3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, ith at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It ould contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In ting cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. itations are not to be counted in determining the number of words.

The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student who, at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this School only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this School, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all word done in courses offered in the School, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the Law School both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—Nominations annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nominations must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who have served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or those who are descendants of active participants in the war. (Temporarily not available.)

HARKER SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

Judge O. A. Harker, Professor of Law, Emeritus, who was Dean of the College of Law from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-21, has endowed two annual prizes: $100 to the senior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the three years in which he was registered; and $50 to the junior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the two years in which he was registered.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society

organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1902. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors, chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship from among the students of this Law School, prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This work forms a part of the educational program of the School.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all and entitles a student to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All of the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available, among others, to law students:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

REQUIRED WORK

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

PROFESSIONAL

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished through giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in them separate and advanced courses.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards bearing on legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council on Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School has advanced its standards even more rapidly than the general movement. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929 and 1931 further advances were made to the present requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing, and (2) Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three year duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to the studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of workir hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studie

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use the students.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number givir their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintanc and influence with the whole student body.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and tl compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall nc depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that gradu tion from a law school should not confer the right of admission to th bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examinatio by public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schoo which comply with the above standards and those which do not, an to make such publications available so far as possible to intendin law students.

In compliance with the policy announced by the American Bar As sociation in 1921, we recommend the establishment in each stat where none now exist, of opportunities for a collegiate training, fre or at moderate cost, so that all deserving young men and wome seeking admission to the bar may obtain an adequate preliminary edu cation; and that the several states be urged, through the Council o Legal Education and Admission to the Bar, to provide at stated time and places for pre-legal examinations to be held by the university o the state or by the Board of Law Examiners thereof for those appli cants for admission to the bar obliged to make up their preliminar qualifications outside of accredited institutions of learning.

This Law School is approved by the Council on Legal Educatio of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoin standards. It also is approved by, and is a charter member of, the As sociation of American Law Schools, the only other national accredit ing agency for law schools.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for th practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules an formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress o students the value of learning how to make discriminative use o legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the pur pose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to th end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire a consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers possibilities of training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota sandstone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains approximately 54,800 volumes including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states and Great Britain; it contains over 4,000 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 4,000 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred fifty periodicals are received currently.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.[1]
2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses

[1] A student of senior standing in an approved college or university who has average grade at least ten per cent (or, where the literal system is employed, a letter) above the passing mark in such school, and who is permitted by it to count law work taken at the University of Illinois towards its degree, is admitted to regular standing as a candidate for a law degree.

in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.[2]

DIRECTIONS TO CANDIDATES FOR ADMISSION

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he has obtained a permit to enter.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent (or where the literal system is employed, a letter) above the passing mark.

SIX-YEAR COMBINED CURRICULA

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 101 of the 1935-1936 Register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 115-116 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.), and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to the regulations of that School.

[2] An undergraduate student at the University of Illinois will not be permitted to transfer his registration to the Law School while his record shows a deficiency in any of the subjects which, as general requirements of the University, are a part of his curriculum.

REQUIRED WORK

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

The courses of the second and third years are elective.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished through giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in them separate and advanced courses.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts an Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelo of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis an counted in making up the number of hours required fo graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis mus be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1 (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) I should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he does not pass in all his work. A student who, at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this School only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this School, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from the Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all work done in courses offered in the School, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

Each year ten percent of the senior class (or a minimum of three) are eligible to the Order of the Coif, a national honorary law society organized to promote scholarship in law, the first chapter of which was established at this Law School in the year 1902. Elections of seniors to the Order of the Coif are held at the beginning of the second semester.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND LOAN FUNDS

Law School Scholarships

Four scholarships covering full-tuition and four scholarships covering half-tuition are awarded at the end of each year under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the Law School both semesters, and have taken at least 28 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—Nominations annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nominations must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July.

State Military Scholarships.—For World War Veterans. Special provision passed by the General Assembly of 1919.

LaVerne Noyes Scholarships.—Made available under the will of LaVerne Noyes to students in the University. These scholarships, covering all student fees, are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or to descendants of active participants in the war who enlisted prior to May 11, 1918.

HARKER SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

Judge O. A. Harker, Professor of Law, Emeritus, who was Dean of the Law School from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-21, has endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the three years in which he was registered; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the two years in which he was registered.

LOAN FUNDS

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Overseas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men to advise and aid students who desire to secure part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 152, Administration Building (West). No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors, chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship from among the students of this Law School, prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This work forms a part of the educational program of the School.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all and entitles a student to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All of the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards bearing on legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council on Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School has advanced its standards even more rapidly than the general movement. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929 and 1931 further advances were made to the present requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing, and (2) Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.[1]

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies.

[1] See statement on change in admission requirements, Note 1, page 9 of this Announcement.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of the students.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar is directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schools which comply with the above standards and those which do not, and to make such publications available so far as possible to intending law students.

In compliance with the policy announced by the American Bar Association in 1921, we recommend the establishment in each state, where none now exist, of opportunities for a collegiate training, free or at moderate cost, so that all deserving young men and women seeking admission to the bar may obtain an adequate preliminary education; and that the several states be urged, through the Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar, to provide at stated times and places for pre-legal examinations to be held by the university of the state or by the Board of Law Examiners thereof for those applicants for admission to the bar obliged to make up their preliminary qualifications outside of accredited institutions of learning.

This Law School is approved by the Council on Legal Education of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoing standards. It also is approved by, and is a charter member of, the Association of American Law Schools, the only other national accrediting agency for law schools.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of learning how to make discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire a consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers possibilities of training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota sandstone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains approximately 56,200 volumes including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states and Great Britain; it contains over 4,000 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 4,000 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred fifty periodicals are received currently.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student[1]

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing.[2]

[1] After June 1, 1939, the following applicants only will be admitted to the College of Law as candidates for degrees in law:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges and universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.

The grades given in courses at the University of Illinois are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the quality of the students' work as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failing. For the purpose of computing the weighted grade average of a student, a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1. When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average is determined by the University of Illinois.

[2] A student of senior standing in an approved college or university who has an average grade at least ten per cent (or, where the literal system is employed, a letter) above the passing mark in such school, and who is permitted by it to count law work taken at the University of Illinois towards its degree, is admitted to regular standing as a candidate for a law degree.

2. Students in the University of Illinois of senior standing having at least an average grade of C (3.) who are permitted to elect courses in law for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or for the degree of Bachelor of Science.

DIRECTIONS TO CANDIDATES FOR ADMISSION

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he has obtained a permit to enter.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten percent (or where the literal system is employed, a letter) above the passing mark.

SIX-YEAR COMBINED CURRICULA

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See p. 99 of the 1936-1937 Register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and pp. 113-114 for curriculum in commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of C (3.),[1] and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to the regulations of that School.

REQUIRED WORK

Pre-Legal

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

Professional

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

The courses of the second and third years are elective.

SPECIALIZATION IN CERTAIN FIELDS OF THE LAW

The program of courses is so arranged that a student may enter upon a measure of specialization in some fields. This is accomplished hrough giving substantial primary courses open to all students and designed to meet the needs of those who desire to prepare themselves only for general practice, and through offering to others, who wish further training in particular fields, the opportunity to elect in them eparate and advanced courses.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a Bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Secretary to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those whose character renders it impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and E. These respectively represent the standing of students as Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Failing.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a ystem is employed in which the following values are assigned to the rades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; equals 1.

A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University: 1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an verage of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he as not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken p to that time; (3) if he fails in any semester to pass in at least eight ours of the work in which he registered; or if he fails in a summer ession to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than ight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer sesion, he does not pass in all his work. A student who, at the end of his hird year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law ork taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in his School only by special permission granted on petition. For the urpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this chool, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work f the following year. When taken after the student's third year of w study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken reviously in this University for the purpose of determining his eliibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who complies with the requirements for graduation from e Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who attains in all ork done in courses offered in the School, and presented for the egree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the niversity Senate for the honors stated: For an average grade of not ss than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not ss than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred hall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM

History and Present Status

Instruction in journalism at the University of Illinois was begun ı 1902 when a course in advertising, proofreading, and the prepara- on of copy for publication was first offered in the Department of hetoric and Oratory. By 1905 a series of courses had been developed nd a four-year program of study preparatory to journalism had been utlined. In the years which followed, the courses were expanded and ıe four-year curriculum strengthened until, by 1912, it had assumed ıe character of a professional course. An undergraduate "major" in ournalism was made an offering of the Division of Journalism in 922 and a few years later the Division was admitted to membership ı the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journal- m. In 1927 the School of Journalism was organized, separated from ıe College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and given status as an dministrative unit of the University. The School of Journalism is ow one of the larger institutions of its kind, its graduating class in 938 numbering 102 students.

Since the beginning in 1902, 1,800 students who looked forward to ıe practice of journalism after graduation have completed courses in ournalism. Of this number, 1,000 are alumni of the courses in ournalism, 200 are early graduates whose major was journalism, and 00 are graduates of the School of Journalism. Development of the rogram in recent years has brought students from many states and ountries to register in the various courses. Transfer students from 86 colleges and universities have been enrolled in the school.

The School now offers three curricula leading toward clearly efined types of work in journalism and semi-journalistic occupations. ts alumni have found its training of service to them in newspaper ork, advertising, publicity, trade journalism, magazine work, radio, ıotion pictures, and other fields.

Standards of First-Class Schools.—The American Association of chools and Departments of Journalism has adopted the following andards for journalistic education:

(1) Instruction must be organized as a separate academic unit with a inimum faculty of three full-time instructors in journalism of professorial ınk.

(2) Distinctly professional courses offered shall be open only to students ho have successfully completed at least two full years of a regular four-year ourse leading to a baccalaureate degree.

(3) The completion of four years work in a university consisting of not ss than 120 semester units shall be required for the bachelor's degree in ournalism.

National Newspaper Contests

The School of Journalism conducts the National Community Newspaper Contests, which are held at five-year intervals. In the daily newspaper division the Samuel Bowles award is given to the paper winning the highest standing. In the weekly paper division the Ben Franklin award is given the winning paper. Entries in this contest are received from papers in the various states, from Alaska, and from island possessions and dependencies of the United States. The next contest will be conducted in 1938.

Direction of Press Programs

The College Press of the State

As a part of its Journalism Conference Program the School of Journalism directs the work of the Illinois College Press Association which consists of thirty student newspapers published by colleges located in various parts of the State. Mr. C. E. Flynn is director of the Association. The member newspapers are as follows:

The Vidette, Illinois State Normal; Teachers College News, Eastern Illinois Teachers College; Augustana Observer, Augustana College; Bradley Tech, Bradley Technological School; Carthage Collegian, Carthage College; Elm Bark, Elmhurst College; Eureka Pegasus, Eureka College; Illinois Rambler, Illinois College; Wesleyan Argus, Wesleyan College; Knox Student, Knox College; Stentor, Lake Forest College; McKendree Review, McKendree College; Decaturian, James Millikin University; Monmouth Oracle, Monmouth College; College Chronicle, North Central College; Northern Illinois, Northern Illinois Teachers College; Shurtleff Pioneer, Shurtleff College; Viatorian, St. Viator College; Western Courier, Western Illinois Teachers College; Lincolnian, Lincoln College; MacMurray College Greetings, MacMurray College; Papyrus, Greenville College; Wheaton Record, Wheaton College; Blackburnian, Blackburn College; The Egyptian, Southern Illinois Teachers College; The Fortnightly, Morgan Park Junior College; North Park College News, North Park College; The Scanner, La Salle-Peru Junior College; The Purple Parrot, Rockford College; The Interlude, College of St. Francis.

The High School Press

The School of Journalism is the headquarters of the Illinois State High School Press Association. Dr. Burrus Dickinson is director of this Association. Its membership includes 150 high school publications.

Teachers of Journalism

Illinois high school teachers of journalism and publication advisers maintain the Illinois Association of Teachers of Journalism. They meet at the University each year during the High School Conference. Miss Loudene Anderson, of Harvey, is president. The Director of the School of Journalism is the representative at the University.

Editors of the State

Since 1924 the Illinois Press Association has, as a rule, held its annual convention at the University. Professor F. S. Siebert is chairman of the arrangements committee for the School of Journalism. The Association serves 800 weeklies and 100 dailies of the State.

Requirements for Admission[1]

Regular Students

For admission to the School of Journalism as a candidate for a degree a student must be able to matriculate in one of the undergraduate colleges of the University and must offer, in addition, 60 semester hours of work with an average grade of "C" in one of the undergraduate curricula, exclusive of physical education and military science.[2] A candidate who seeks admission from another institution must offer the same amount of work in an established curriculum of that institution.

[1] Consult the Director of the School concerning shortages or special plans.

[2] The military and physical education requirements must be completed on schedule. Students who fail in these courses will be required to complete them in the junior year.

Typewriting and Shorthand

Students who plan to take up the study of journalism are advised to study typewriting and shorthand and to acquire some proficiency in the use of both. These subjects should not be pursued as substitutes for courses which would otherwise be taken, but should be pursued in addition to other studies. Proficiency in these subjects will shortly be required for admission to schools of journalism. They may be studied in high school or in business college.

High School Courses Recommended

The following type of high school program is recommended to students who may qualify at a later date for the study of journalism in a professional school:

	Units
English, including high school journalism	4 or 5
Foreign language, four years in one of the following: Latin, Greek, French, German,—and two years in a second language, preferably from the foregoing list	6
History	2
Science, a year in one of the following: physics, chemistry, botany, zoology, biology	1
Mathematics: algebra, plane geometry, solid and spherical geometry	1
Miscellaneous (not counting extra credit in typewriting and shorthand)	2

Students preparing for journalism as a profession are advised to read widely in the classics, in history, and in biography.

Unclassified Students

In exceptional instances, persons over twenty-one years of age may, with the approval of the Director, be admitted as unclassified students. In determining whether a person may be admitted as an unclassified student, consideration is given to the applicant's age and experience, as bearing upon his ability to pursue journalism study successfully. An unclassified student is not a candidate for a degree and credit earned by one who is an unclassified student at the time he receives the credit may not be counted toward a degree in journalism except on petition.

Neither admission nor attendance as an unclassified student in the School of Journalism in one semester gives a right to continue as an unclassified student in any subsequent semester. If an unclassified student's record has been in any sense unsatisfactory, the Director may refuse the student permission to register as unclassified in any subsequent semester.

Advanced Standing

Students from schools of journalism of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer credit not to exceed one year in the School of Journalism. Students from other schools may, in special cases, be given advanced standing upon examination in subjects taken by them in such schools.

Fees and Expenses

All students who are residents of Illinois pay an incidental fee of $35.00 a semester and all students not residents of Illinois pay an incidental fee of $62.50 a semester. Expense allowances should be made for: books and equipment for the year, from $25 to $75; room rent from $50 to $100; board from $200 to $300; laundry $30 to $45. This list does not take into account the cost of clothing, railroad fare, or incidentals. (For special fees consult the Annual Register of the University.)

Graduate Study

Graduates of the School of Journalism may be admitted to the Graduate School and may become candidates for advanced degrees in various fields of specialization as a partial preparation for highly exacting positions in criticism and other editorial work, and in business and advertising. Students looking forward to graduate study are advised to acquire a reading knowledge of French or German (or both) and to obtain credit in courses in the group open to advanced undergraduates in two or more departments.

Examinations and Grades

General Standards

Members of the journalism faculty are in much the same relationship to the students as employers and editors are to junior members of their staffs. Instructors will take into consideration the attitudes of their students in determining their grades in all courses. Professional codes for journalism stress integrity, loyalty, responsibility, sincerity, truthfulness, accuracy, and development of the highest competence and judgment. Students will be judged in terms of these qualities as well as in terms of rate of learning. The qualities of initiative, resourcefulness, faithfulness to duty, and value in an emergency will also receive the attention of the instructors in the assignment of grades.

Semester Examinations

Regular examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those the character of which renders them impracticable. Credit is given only upon examination in those courses in which examinations are held. Grades of "excused" or "absent" become failures if not made up during the following semester.

Special Examinations

Special examinations in journalism courses in which a student has failed are given only in rare instances and not as a matter of course. Permission to take special examinations may be granted only by the instructor offering the course with the approval of the Director.

No special examinations may be given during the period beginning ten days before and continuing for ten days after each final examination period, except that special examinations may be given on and after the first Friday of the second semester.

Proficiency Examinations

Proficiency examinations will be offered each year in Journalism 1a, 1b, 3, 5, and 9. Students wishing to apply for a proficiency examination in one of these subjects should notify the office of the School of Journalism, 101 Commerce Building, on or before September 10 for first semester examinations, and on or before February 1 for second semester examinations. The notice should be in writing and state that the student meets the prerequisites for the course and has covered the subject matter through study and experience. The examinations will be given on the Saturday preceding upperclass registration each semester.

Proficiency examinations will not ordinarily be offered in courses limited to juniors and seniors. To apply for a proficiency examination in an advanced course in journalism, a student must obtain the permission of the instructor in that course and then apply to the Director of the School of Journalism. The instructor will not recommend approval unless the student has, at the time of the request, acquired through study and experience learning and discipline indicating that his request has special merit. The Director will consider the general record of the student and matters of University policy in passing on requests. The rules governing the time of application and examination are the same as those noted in the preceding paragraph.

No proficiency examinations will be given during the period ten days before and continuing ten days after the final examination period, except as noted above.

The passing grade on proficiency examinations is "C."

The Grade-Point System

The grades given at the end of each course are as follows: "A," excellent; "B," good; "C," fair; "D," poor; "E," failure.

The grade-point system awards three points for every hour of "A," two points for every hour of "B," and one point for every hour of "C." This system is applied to all credits earned in the University of Illinois beyond the number needed (60) for admission to the School of Journalism. Required courses in physical education and military science will not be counted in the determination of grade-points, but advanced courses in these subjects will be counted.

In order to receive the bachelor's degree in the School of Journalism a student must obtain as many grade-points as credits, in courses taken at the University of Illinois, and presented for the degree, exclusive of required courses in military science and in physical education, and of the 60 hours required for admission to the School of Journalism.

In practical operation this rule means that "D" grades earned during the junior and senior years must be balanced by grades of "A" and "B."

Note: The grade-point system should not be confused with the ystem of calculation of averages which evaluates literal grades as fol- ows: "A" = 5; "B" = 4; "C" = 3; "D" = 2; "E" = 1.

Probation and Dropping

A student in the School of Journalism whose average for a se- nester falls between 2.75 and 3.00 will be placed on probation. A tudent thus placed on probation will be dropped at the end of the ollowing semester unless his average for the year is 3.00 or higher.

A student in the School of Journalism whose average for any emester falls below 2.75 will be dropped.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards bearing on legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council on Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School has advanced its standards even more rapidly than the general movement. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929, 1931, and 1939, further advances were made in the requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing who have at least an average grade of 3.0 (C) in all work submitted for their degrees, and (2) students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have at least an average grade of 3.25.[1]

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduatio from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two yea of study in a college.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three year duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to the studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of workin hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studie

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use o the students.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number givin their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintanc and influence with the whole student body.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and th compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall no depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

(f) It shall be a school which in the judgment of the Council o Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar possesses reasonabl adequate facilities and maintains a sound educational policy; provide however, that any decision of the Council in these respects shall b subject to review by the House of Delegates on the petition of an school adversely affected.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to th bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examinatio by public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar i directed to publish from time to time the names of those law school which comply with the above standards and of those which do not, an to make such publications available so far as possible to intendin law students.

In compliance with the policy announced by the American Bar Association in 1921, we recommend the establishment in each state where none now exist, of opportunities for a collegiate training, fre or at moderate cost, so that all deserving young men and wome seeking admission to the bar may obtain an adequate preliminary education; and that the several states be urged, through the Council o Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, to provide at stated time and places for pre-legal examinations to be held by the university o the state or by the Board of Law Examiners thereof for those applicants for admission to the bar obliged to make up their preliminar qualifications outside of accredited institutions of learning.

This Law School is approved by the Council on Legal Educatio of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoin standards. It also is approved by, and is a charter member of, the Association of American Law Schools, the only other national accrediting agency for law schools.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of learning how to make discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

As an integral part of its program, the School aims to promote legal scholarship and research, to develop an appreciation of the highest ideals of the profession, and to inspire a consciousness of responsibility of the lawyer to society in furthering the wise development of law and in improving its administration. To students of high scholarship so inclined, the School offers possibilities of training for law teaching.

EQUIPMENT

THE LAW BUILDING

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota sandstone, is modern Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large class rooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one office, a faculty reading room, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, two small class rooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 61,000 volumes including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states and Great Britain; it contains over 4,500 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 4,500 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred ten periodicals are received currently.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for l degrees:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges a universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted gra average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weight grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another c lege or university must file with the Registrar of the Universi (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of hon able dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the ins tution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to t Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admissi to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of th University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fa promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. N student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he h obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply wi the requirements for admission to this School may receive by tran fer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given f work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of t school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit w be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a gra ten percent (or where the literal system is employed, a letter) abo the passing mark.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thi hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Co merce and Business Administration. In this manner students m secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree law. (See page 107 of the 1938-1939 Register for statement of ele tives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and page 1 for statement on commerce and law.) A candidate for both degre must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college m require.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, 13 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this Universi

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of 3.25,[1] and who otherwise is eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law provided that not less than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken, and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to the regulations of that School.

REQUIRED WORK

PRE-LEGAL

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Business Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

PROFESSIONAL

Fifteen hours of law work should be enough to occupy a student's full time; he cannot register for more without special permission.

Employment Bureau

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean o Men to advise and aid students who desire to secure part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 23 Student Center. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors, chosen primarily on the basis of scholarship from among the students of this Law School, prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This work forms a part of the educational program of the School.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all and entitles a student to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All of the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by the standards of the above-named Associations. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929, 1931, and 1939, further advances were made in the requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing who have at least an average grade of 3.0 (C) in all work submitted for their degrees, and (2) students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have at least an average grade of 3.25.[1]

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 14 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduatio from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition to admission at least two year of study in a college.

An approved school shall require of all candidates for any degree a the time of the commencement of their law study the completion of one half of the work acceptable for a bachelor's degree granted on the basis o a four-year period of study either by the state university or a principa college or university in the state where the law school is located.[1]

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to thei studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of workin hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies

A law school which maintains a course for full-time students and course for part-time students must comply with all the requirements as t both courses.

The curriculum and schedule of work of a full-time course shall be s arranged that substantially the full working time of students is require for a period of three years of at least thirty weeks each. A part-tim course shall cover a period of at least four years of at least thirty-si weeks each and shall be the equivalent of a full-time course.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use o the students.

An adequate library shall consist of not less than seventy-five hundre well-selected, usable volumes, not counting obsolete material or broken set of reports, kept up to date and owned or controlled by the law school o the university with which it is connected.

A school shall be adequately supported and housed so as to make possibl efficient work on the part of both students and faculty.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintanc and influence with the whole study body.

The number of full-time instructors shall be not less than one for eacl one hundred students or major fraction thereof, and in no case shall the number of such full-time instructors be less than three.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall no depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

(f) It shall be a school which in the judgment of the Council of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar possesses reasonably adequate facilities and maintains a sound educational policy; provided however, that any decision of the Council in these respects shall be subject to review by the House of Delegates on the petition of any school adversely affected.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar is directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schools which comply with the above standards and of those which do not, and to make such publications available so far as possible to intending law students.

Schools shall be designated “Approved” or “Unapproved.” A list of approved schools shall be issued from time to time showing the schools hat have fully complied with the American Bar Association standards. No school shall be placed upon the approved list without an inspection prior to such approval made under the direction of the Council.

The Law School of the University of Illinois is approved by the Council of Legal Education of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoing standards. It also is approved by, and is a harter member of, the Association of American Law Schools, the nly other national accrediting agency for law schools.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice f law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the alue of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them n appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the ecessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing onditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the ourts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as orces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the w.

Realizing that some of its graduates will become judges, legislators, achers of the law, or leaders of public thought, the Law School tempts to give to them the type of training best calculated to stimulate terest in legal scholarship and research; and to inspire a consciousess of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational evelopment and improvement of the law both in its substance and its dministration.

THE REGULAR AND THE SUMMER SESSIONS

he calendar for the regular session of the Law School appears on ge 2 of this Announcement.

The summer session begins approximately one week after the close the regular session in June, and covers a period of eight weeks. Two mmer sessions are the equivalent of one semester. By taking two mmer sessions, the student may complete his law course at the end the first semester in his third academic year. The courses offered the summer session are identical in substance with corresponding urses offered during the regular session, and the standard of holastic achievement is the same.

The program of the summer session is so arranged as to meet the needs of the beginning student as well as the advanced student. Course for advanced students are varied from year to year in the summe session in order that the student may secure a full program in two o more successive years.

EQUIPMENT

The Law Building

The Law Building, constructed of Minnesota sandstone, is moder Romanesque in style. On the first floor are two large classrooms an lockers for students. On the second floor are one faculty office, faculty reading room, an office for the Board of Student Advisors, an two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. Th library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof and is lighte through a dome of art glass. The entrance to the book stacks is fro this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty office the office of the Board of Student Editors of the Illinois Bar Journa two small classrooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacit for three hundred fifty persons.

The Law Library

The Law Library contains approximately 63,000 volumes includin the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferi federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both offici edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the publishe decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Iris Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the cu rent statute law of the United States, the several states and Gre Britain; it contains over 4,800 volumes of older compilations and se sion laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digest legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, an 5,000 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred twent periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently use are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, so as be easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library have recently bee refurnished with new tables and chairs of the most suitable desig and a new system of indirect table lighting has been installed.

Law students may also use the general University Library whic has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes, and which is the large state university library in the United States.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for la degrees:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges a universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of grading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

Six-Year Combined Curricula

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. In this manner students may secure in six years both a degree in arts or commerce and a degree in law. (See page 112 of the 1939-1940 Register for statement of electives in law in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and page 123 for statement on commerce and law.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

Students in Other Colleges Electing Law Courses

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of 3.25[2] and is otherwise eligible to enrollment in the

---

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 14 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

[2] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 14 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

Law School may elect courses in law, provided that no fewer than tw courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, und the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to tal more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law Scho and thus become subject to its regulations.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care ar to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the combined curriculum of either the College Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Commerce and Busine Administration and the Law School must exercise care to comp with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in whic their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete of these requirements before entering the Law School in order th they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the la curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyor those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, fro among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetor and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American ar English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particular logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

PROFESSIONAL COURSE

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full tim he can not register for more without special permission.

The courses of the second and third years are elective.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the cours in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course mu inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of th course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admissio to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the School a certification that h has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the Law School is so large that it would require four full years of a student's time if he should elect them all. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a bachelor's degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or in the College of Commerce and Business Administration at least two academic years prior to the completion of the courses for the degree of Doctor of Law.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Assistant to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he has failed in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this School only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this School, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for graduation from the Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the School, and presented for the degree, the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first chapter of which was established in this Law School in the year 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

The Harker Memorial Fund.—It is planned to make available in the near future a limited number of scholarships under the Harker Memorial Fund for award to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the Law School. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the Law School from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

[1] For residents of Illinois; non-residents pay $150.00 a year.

Trustees' Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the Law School four scholarships carrying full-tuition, and four scholarships carrying half-tuition. These scholarships are awarded annually after the close of the regular academic year, under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the Law School both semesters, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University. They cover part of a student's fees and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or to descendants of active participants in the war who enlisted prior to May 11, 1918.

PRIZES

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the three years in which he was registered; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the two years in which he was registered.

Nathan Burkan Memorial Prize.—The American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, of New York City, offers annually a prize of $100 to the member of the graduating class in the Law School who submits the best paper on some aspect of the subject of copyright law. Competition for this prize is subject to the regulations adopted by a faculty committee, which decides the merits of such papers as may be submitted. No award will be made if in the opinion of the committee none of the papers submitted is of sufficient merit.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund; William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation Fund.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the Law School are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 236 Student Center. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of the best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who have attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the Law School. It affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart in the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All of the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

THE BOARD OF STUDENT ADVISORS

The Board of Student Advisors is chosen from the second- and third-year classes by a joint committee of the faculty and the Junior Bar Association. The board conducts a program of orientation for first-year law students. It also supervises the Illinois Competition, which affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participate in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winners of the Competition.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course; several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This Law School, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This Law School was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this School advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by the standards of the above-named Associations. When the School was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, and in 1915 it was advanced to two years. In 1929, 1931, and 1939, further advances were made in the requirements. Under these regulations only the following persons are admitted as candidates for degrees: (1) graduates of colleges and universities of approved standing who have at least an average grade of 3.0 (C) in all work submitted for their degrees, and (2) students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have at least an average grade of 3.25.[1]

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association has adopted the following standards for legal education:

1. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 15 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition to admission at least two years of study in a college.

An approved school shall require of all candidates for any degree at the time of the commencement of their law study the completion of one-half of the work acceptable for a bachelor's degree granted on the basis of a four-year period of study either by the state university or a principal college or university in the state where the law school is located.[1]

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies.

A law school which maintains a course for full-time students and a course for part-time students must comply with all the requirements as to both courses.

The curriculum and schedule of work of a full-time course shall be so arranged that substantially the full working time of students is required for a period of three years of at least thirty weeks each. A part-time course shall cover a period of at least four years of at least thirty-six weeks each and shall be the equivalent of a full-time course.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of the students.

An adequate library shall consist of not less than seventy-five hundred well-selected, usable volumes, not counting obsolete material or broken sets of reports, kept up to date and owned or controlled by the law school or the university with which it is connected.

A school shall be adequately supported and housed so as to make possible efficient work on the part of both students and faculty.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body.

The number of full-time instructors shall be not less than one for each one hundred students or major fraction thereof, and in no case shall the number of such full-time instructors be less than three.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

(f) It shall be a school which in the judgment of the Council of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar possesses reasonably adequate facilities and maintains a sound educational policy; provided, however, that any decision of the Council in these respects shall be subject to review by the House of Delegates on the petition of any school adversely affected.

2. The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the bar, and that every candidate should be subjected to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness.

[1] Paragraphs in smaller type are interpretations which have been made by the Council of Legal Education of the American Bar Association.

3. The Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar is directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schools which comply with the above standards and of those which do not, and to make such publications available so far as possible to intending law students.

Schools shall be designated "Approved" or "Unapproved." A list of approved schools shall be issued from time to time showing the schools that have fully complied with the American Bar Association standards. No school shall be placed upon the approved list without an inspection prior to such approval made under the direction of the Council.

The Law School of the University of Illinois is approved by the Council of Legal Education of the American Bar Association as fully meeting the foregoing standards. It also is approved by, and is a charter member of, the Association of American Law Schools, the only other national accrediting agency for law schools.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the School is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this School conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas. The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

Realizing that some of its graduates will become judges, legislators, teachers of the law, or leaders of public thought, the Law School attempts to give to them the type of training best calculated to stimulate interest in legal scholarship and research; and to inspire a consciousness of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational development and improvement of the law both in its substance and its administration.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction, involving the thorough analysis of selected cases and statutes and the discussion of legal principles deduced therefrom, is chiefly employed, especially in the first and second years of the law course. This method, which is followed by the leading law schools of the country, has the merit of introducing students to the materials they will use in the practice of law, and of teaching them to make discriminations and to reason by analogy. However, in order to give perspective on the legal system and the place of cases in it, and to broaden and enrich this program, the faculty has injected into it two additional features:

The first feature is a non-credit introductory course. For this course the first-year class, on being admitted to the Law School, i divided into small groups of not more than ten students each. At leas five members of the staff participate in this program, each takin charge of a group of students. Their separate responsibilities are t instruct the students (1) on the use of the library, (2) on the sources o law, (3) on the place of statutes and other materials in the legal system, (4) on the evolution of a law suit, and (5) on the analysis o court decisions. As each instructor finishes with a particular group o students, he takes charge of another group, and so on until all first-yea students have received his instruction. The theory of the course is t introduce first-year students to the legal system as a whole, its component parts, methodologies, source materials, substance, and aims.

The second feature is the employment, wherever feasible, of th seminar method of instruction. The purpose is to enrich the conten and scope of the legal materials examined through studying them i the context of the disciplines related to law and through seeking a understanding of legal principles in the light of the forces that creat them. Several advanced courses are taught by the seminar method.

THE SUMMER SESSION

The calendar for the regular session of the Law School appears o page 2 of this Announcement.

The summer session begins approximately one week after the clos of the regular session in June, and covers a period of eight weeks. Tw summer sessions are the equivalent of one semester. By taking tw summer sessions, the student may complete his law course at the en of the first semester in his third academic year. The courses offere in the summer session are identical in substance with correspondin courses offered during the regular session, and the standard o scholastic achievement is the same.

The program of the summer session is so arranged as to meet th needs of the beginning student as well as the advanced student. Course for advanced students are varied from year to year in the summe session in order that the student may secure a full program in two o more successive years.

BUILDING

The Law Building was renamed Altgeld Hall in 1940 in honor of Joh Peter Altgeld, who as Governor of Illinois and a member of the Boar of Trustees of the University of Illinois from 1893 to 1897 was instrumental in the founding of the Law School. Constructed of Minnesot sandstone, the building is of modern Romanesque style. On the firs floor are two large classrooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one faculty office, a faculty reading room, an office fo the Board of Student Advisors, and two large reading rooms accommodating two hundred persons. The library delivery room, on thi floor, is open to the roof and is lighted through a dome of art glass The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floo are the administrative and faculty offices, the office of the Board of Student Editors of the Illinois Bar Journal, two small classrooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 67,000 volumes, including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states, and Great Britain; it contains over 4,800 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 5,000 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred twenty periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently used are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, so as to be easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library have recently been refurnished with new tables and chairs of the most suitable design, and a new system of indirect table lighting has been installed.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,000,000 volumes, and which is the largest state university library in the United States.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges and universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the Law School from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the Law School from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the Law School until he has obtained a permit to enter.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 15 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this School may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of grading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

SIX-YEAR COMBINED CURRICULA

Thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in either the College of Commerce and Business Administration or the College of Agriculture. In this manner students may secure in six years both the degree of A.B. or B.S. and a degree in law. (See the Annual Register of the University for statements of the regulations in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and in the College of Commerce; for regulations in the College of Agriculture, consult the Dean of that college.) A candidate for both degrees must in his fourth year register in the Law School, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college, as that college may require.

STUDENTS IN OTHER COLLEGES ELECTING LAW COURSES

A student registered in another college of the University who has an average grade of 3.25[1] and is otherwise eligible to enrollment in the Law School may elect courses in law, provided that no fewer than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the Law School as to the courses to be taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the Law School and thus become subject to its regulations.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking a combined curriculum in liberal arts and law, or commerce and law, or agriculture and law, must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the Law School in order that they may devote their entire fourth year to the first year of the law curriculum.

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 15 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

PROFESSIONAL COURSE

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full time; he may not register for more without special permission.

Law 10—Possessory Estates	3
Total	15	Total	15

The courses of the second and third years are elective.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the courses in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course must inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of the course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admission to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the School a certification that he has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE FOR MILITARY SERVICE

A student leaving the Law School to enter the military or naval forces of the United States may return to the School, after an absence of not more than two years, to continue his courses from the point where hey were interrupted. He should, however, consult the Dean concernng courses in which this procedure may not be practicable.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the Law School is so large that it would require four full years of a student's time if he should elect them all. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (ll.b.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred on students who, having studied law for a period equal to three academic years, obtain 84 law credits with an average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

In order to count resident study in full satisfaction of the time requirement of three academic years, a student must carry courses aggregating not less than ten hours a week each semester. Proportional credit toward the time requirement will be awarded to students carrying less than ten hours a week. A summer session is equivalent to one-half of one semester for purposes of residence if the student attends classes not less than ten hours a week.

Degree of Doctor of Law (j.d.)

The degree of Doctor of Law will be granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure a bachelor's degree in an approved undergraduate college.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the Law School. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.
4. Present a thesis approved by the faculty of the Law School, in accordance with the requirements hereinafter set out. Credit may be earned for work done on the thesis and counted in making up the number of hours required for graduation. (See program of courses, Law 39a-39b.)

Rules Concerning Theses

The following are the rules concerning theses presented for the degree of Doctor of Law: (1) The thesis must be on a subject approved by the Dean of the Law School after consultation with him as to the proposed method of treatment. (2) The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Assistant to the Dean on or before November 1. (3) The thesis must be typewritten on thesis paper 8½ x 11 inches, with at least one inch margin at the top, bottom, and sides. (4) It should contain not less than 4,000 nor more than 10,000 words. (5) In citing cases, names of parties, volume, page, and year should be given. Citations are not to be counted in determining the number of words. The student is expected to exhaust the cases decided during the period covered by his thesis, and to state the period for which the cases have been examined. (6) The thesis must be submitted for approval to the Faculty not later than March 1. (7) It must be approved finally not later than May 1.

The thesis may then be returned to the writer for revision or, if unsatisfactory, it may be rejected altogether. If returned for revision it may be rejected after being revised. If accepted it will be filed in the Law Library, and may be published by the Law School or by the University.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the Law School will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of his second year he has not secured an average of 3. in all of the law work he has taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he registered; or if he has failed in a summer session to pass in at least four hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester, or in less than four hours in a summer session, he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of his third year of law study, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this School only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this School, work taken in summer session will be valued with the work of the following year. When taken after the student's third year of law study it will be valued with all of the law work he has taken previously in this University for the purpose of determining his eligibility for graduation.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for graduation from the Law School (degree of LL.B. or J.D.) and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the School and presented for the degree the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first chapter of which was established in this Law School in the year 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

Harker Memorial Scholarships.—A limited number of scholarships are planned under the Harker Memorial Fund for award to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the Law School. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the Law School from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

[1] For residents of Illinois; non-residents pay $220.00 a year.

Law Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the Law School four scholarships carrying full-tuition, and four scholarships carrying half-tuition. These scholarships are awarded annually after the close of the regular academic year, under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the Law School having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the Law School both semesters, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University. They cover part of a student's fees and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or to descendants of active participants in the war who enlisted prior to May 11, 1918.

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the three years in which he was registered; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior making the highest average grade in law subjects for the two years in which he was registered.

Nathan Burkan Memorial Prize.—The American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, of New York City, offers annually a prize of $100 to the member of the graduating class in the Law School who submits the best paper on some aspect of the subject of copyright law. Competition for this prize is subject to the regulations adopted by a faculty committee, which decides the merits of the papers submitted. No award will be made if in the opinion of the committee none of the papers submitted is of sufficient merit.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margare Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation Fund.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the Law School are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 104 Administration Building. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of the best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who have attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the Law School. It affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart in the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the Law School is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot-court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

FREDERICK GREEN COMPETITION

The Frederick Green Moot-Court Competition is conducted by a selected group of advanced students, under faculty supervision. It affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participate in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winners of the competition. The student who places first in the second-year argument has his name engraved on the gold loving cup given by the Horner Chapter of the Nu Beta Epsilon law fraternity for that purpose, which is kept permanently in the Law Library.

The Lawyer in War and in Peace

It must be acknowledged that the cause of legal education is experiencing difficulties during the war. The national interest is claiming thousands of young men who under peacetime conditions would have pursued a legal training. But let there be no mistake on the rôle of the lawyer in war or in peace. A long-time view of our country's needs involves a program of developing men capable of leadership. "An arsenal is no stronger than the men who control the destinies of the state"; an army is no stronger than its leaders. The legal profession has given our country ever since its inception many of its most capable leaders, and our country in war stands in need of men trained in the law. It is significant that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has for many years recruited its investigators from the ranks of young lawyers. It also is an accepted fact that lawyers make capable officers in almost any branch of the armed service and many today are serving the country in the field of war. Others are employed by the government, toiling in its various civil departments.

But in a larger sense, lawyers are essential to the operations of democracy in war or in peace. A free society can not be maintained without law. Liberty and justice complement each other; neither can exist without the other, and neither is likely to exist in a country that does not have a highly trained bar. The profession's pre-eminence in supplying leaders for the principal offices of government is well known. But that is only part of the story. Public opinion and policies are not shaped alone in the halls of Congress, in the Supreme Court, and in the offices of our executives. They take form and find expression in the hundreds of communities, large and small, throughout the land. And here, as democracy in all of its intricacies goes into action, the lawyer does some of his most effective work. Our country requires a highly trained bar in time of war to serve its needs on the field of battle, to uphold and maintain the civil rights of its citizens, and to sustain morale. It needs a highly trained bar in war or in peace to assist its citizens in the orderly settlement of their disputes, to perform the functions of government, to administer justice, and to promote the efficient operation of democracy.

Program Adjustments During the War

For the convenience of law students who wish to accelerate their program of law study, the College of Law has organized, in addition to the regular sessions, a twelve-week summer quarter. This period is divided into two terms of six weeks. Beginning courses are offered in this period, as well as advanced ones. By attending summer sessions, a student can shorten his law-study period substantially.

A series of regulations has also been adopted under which credit is given to, and adjustments for graduation made for, students who leave the University to enter the armed services in mid-semester or mid-term. If they leave after finishing a substantial portion of a session, full credit is given upon examination.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Legal education has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course, several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This College of Law, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This College of Law was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this College advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by the standards of the above-named Associations. When the College was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, in 1915 it was advanced to two years, and in 1929, to three years. Since that time several changes have been made, bearing on admission standards and on the length and scope of the course of study. The College now offers the following options: (1) a three-year curriculum in law based on an entrance requirement of three years of college work with an average grade of 3.25, and (2) a four-year curriculum in law based on two years of college work with an average grade of 3.5.[1]

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 21 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University. A student who has a degree from an approved college may enter with an average grade of 3.0.

BUILDING

The Law Building was renamed Altgeld Hall in 1940 in honor of John Peter Altgeld, who as Governor of Illinois and a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois from 1893 to 1897 was instrumental in the founding of the College of Law. Constructed of Minnesota sandstone, the building is of modern Romanesque style. On the first floor are two large classrooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one faculty office, a faculty reading room, an office for the Moot-Court Competition Board, and two large reading rooms with a seating capacity of 175 persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof. The entrance to the book stacks is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, the office of the Board of Student Editors of the Illinois Bar Journal, two small classrooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity of 350 persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 70,000 volumes, including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states, and Great Britain; it contains over 4,800 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 5,500 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred twenty periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently used are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, so as to be easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library have recently been refurnished with new tables and chairs of the most suitable design, and a new system of indirect table lighting has been installed.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,200,000 volumes, and which is the largest state university library in the United States.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the College is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this College conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas.

The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

The faculty recognizes that not all of the graduates of the College of Law will practice law. Some, perhaps many, will go into government service; some will become judges, legislators, or teachers of law; and a few will become leaders of public thought. The course of study has been shaped with that in mind, and to the end that it may inspire a consciousness of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational development and improvement of the law both in its substance and in its administration.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction, involving the thorough analysis of selected cases and statutes and the discussion of legal principles deduced therefrom, is chiefly employed, especially in the first and second years of the law course. This method, which is followed by the leading law schools of the country, has the merit of introducing students to the materials they will use in the practice of law, and of teaching them to make discriminations and to reason by analogy. However, in order to give perspective on the legal system and the place of cases in it, and to broaden and enrich this program, the faculty employs, wherever feasible, the seminar method of instruction. Legal materials are studied in the context of the disciplines related to law, and the student is taught to seek an understanding of legal principles in the light of the forces that create them. Several advanced courses are taught by the seminar method.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the curriculum leading toward degrees in both liberal arts and law, or commerce and law, or agriculture and law, must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire time to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

Most students in their pre-legal work emphasize courses in the social sciences. These provide an excellent background for law, and students carrying majors in other fields should take as much work as possible in the social sciences. Attention is also called to the fact that engineering and law, agriculture and law, and chemistry and law are very good combinations in the preparation they give for special fields of practice.

OPTIONAL PROGRAMS IN LAW

The student may choose one of two programs. (1) He may pursue his college course for at least three years and then enter the three-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, and if he has spent at least one year in residence as an undergraduate in the University of Illinois, thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in either the College of Commerce and Business Administration or the College of Agriculture. In this manner he may secure in six years both the degree of A.B. or B.S. and a degree in law. (See Annual Register of the University for statements of the regulations in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the College of Commerce and Business Administration, and the College of Agriculture.) A candidate for both degrees in this curriculum must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college as that college may require.

(2) Or the student may pursue his college course for a minimum of two years and then enter the four-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, he can, after two years in the College of Law, secure a degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, and in two additional years a professional degree in law (LL.B. or J.D.). In this curriculum he will be required to register in a number of courses particularly designed for it.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student in the Three-Year Curriculum

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the three-year law curriculum:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges and universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

As a Regular Student in the Four-Year Curriculum

The following persons only will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the four-year curriculum in law:

Students who have completed in residence one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college of the University of Illinois, or one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college approved by the University, and who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.5.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the College of Law from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the College of Law from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the College of Law until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this College may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of grading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

Students in Other Colleges Electing Law Courses

A student registered in another college of the University who is qualified to enroll in either the three- or the four-year curriculum may elect courses in the College of Law, provided that no fewer than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the courses to be taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to its regulations.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 21 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

PROGRAM OF LAW COURSES

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full time; he may not register for more without special permission.

(2). Prerequisite: Junior standing in an undergraduate college of the University. Dr. WALTER.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the College of Law is considerably greater than a student is able to take in the normal course of his program. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the courses in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course must inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of the course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admission to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the College a certification that he has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

FEES AND EXPENSES

Fees

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee of	$ 10.00
Deposit required of all students at time of first registration	5.00
Tuition fee. Law students who are residents of Illinois, except those holding scholarships, pay each semester a tuition fee of	55.00

THE SUMMER TERM

The summer term begins approximately one week after the close of the regular session in May, and covers a period of twelve weeks. The term is divided into two sessions of six weeks each. Through his attendance in the summer terms, a student can shorten his period of law study substantially. The courses offered in the summer are identical in substance with corresponding courses offered during the regular session, and the standard of scholastic achievement is the same.

The program of the summer term is so arranged as to meet the needs of the beginning student as well as the advanced student. Courses for advanced students are varied from year to year in the summer term in order that the student may secure a full program in two or more successive years.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of any subsequent year of residence, except the final year of the curriculum in which he is registered, he has failed to secure an average of 3. in all of his law work taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he was registered; or if he has failed in a twelve-week summer term to pass in at least six hours; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester or in less than six hours in a twelve-week summer term, he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of the final year of the three- or four-year curriculum, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition. For the purpose of determining the eligibility of a student to remain in this College, work taken in the summer term will be valued with the work of the following year.

Degree of Bachelor of Science in Law (B.S.)

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Law is conferred on students in the four-year curriculum who obtain 58 law credits with a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred on students who secure a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in credits obtained in law courses taken in this University, and who either (1) study law for a period equal to three academic years in the three-year curriculum and obtain 84 hours of law credit, or (2) obtain 112 hours of law credit in the four-year curriculum.

In order to count resident study in full satisfaction of the time requirement, a student must carry courses aggregating not less than ten hours a week each semester or term. Proportional credit toward the time requirement is awarded to students carrying less than ten hours a week.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law is granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law or a bachelor's degree in an approved undergraduate college.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, Bachelor of Laws or Doctor of Law and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the College of Law and presented for the degree the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first chapter of which was established in this College of Law in the year 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

Harker Memorial Scholarships.—A limited number of scholarships under the Harker Memorial Fund are awarded to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the College of Law. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the College from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

Law Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the College of Law four scholarships carrying full-tuition, and four scholarships carrying half-tuition. These scholarships are awarded annually after the close of the regular academic year, under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the preceding year. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the preceding year.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one year shall have intervened.

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University. They cover part of a student's fees and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or to descendants of active participants in the war who enlisted prior to May 11, 1918.

Prizes

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior law student making the highest average grade in law subjects during his entire course; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior law student making the highest average grade in all law subjects taken up to the end of his junior year.

Nathan Burkan Memorial Prize.—The American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, of New York City, offers annually a prize of $100 to the member of the graduating class in the College of Law who submits the best paper on some aspect of the subject of copyright law. Competition for this prize is subject to the regulations adopted by a faculty committee, which decides the merits of the papers submitted. No award will be made if in the opinion of the committee none of the papers submitted is of sufficient merit.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund; William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation Fund.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the College of Law are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 104 Administration Building. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of the best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who have attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the College of Law. It affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart in the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the College of Law is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot-court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

FREDERICK GREEN COMPETITION

The Frederick Green Moot-Court Competition is conducted by a selected group of advanced students, under faculty supervision. It affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participate in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winners of the competition. The student who places first in the second-year argument has his name engraved on the gold loving cup given by the Horner Chapter of the Nu Beta Epsilon law fraternity for that purpose, which is kept permanently in the Law Library.

The Wartime Program of the College of Law

THE COLLEGE OF LAW operates on a year-round schedule, under which the calendar year is divided into three sixteen-week terms. Each of these terms is the equivalent of a normal semester. The program is so arranged that the student may start his law studies at the beginning of any session. If from then on he attends each successive term, it is possible for him to finish the regular three-year course in law in two calendar years. A student in the four-year curriculum in law may ccelerate his program proportionately.

In view of the uncertainties incident to attendance during the var, the faculty of the College has approved various adjustments nder which credit is given to students who leave the University to nter the armed services in mid-term. If they leave after finishing a ubstantial portion of a session, full credit is given upon examination.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

EGAL EDUCATION has had a rapid development during the last eneration. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's ffice was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most art, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course, everal gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-ear course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. his College of Law, through a representative, participated in the rganization of that Association and became a charter member. The ssociation took for its object the improvement of legal education in is country. It set up standards for membership and became a ational accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a imulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United tates. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, lopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that ery candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of raduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 e Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standrdizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. his College of Law was one of the first group to be approved by the ouncil.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education is College advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by e standards of the above-named Associations. When the College was ganized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 11 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college ork, in 1915 it was advanced to two years, and in 1929, to three ars. Since that time several changes have been made, bearing on mission standards and on the length and scope of the course of dy. The College now offers the following options: (1) a three-ar curriculum in law based on an entrance requirement of three ars of college work with an average grade of 3.25, and (2) a four-ar curriculum in law based on two years of college work with an erage grade of 3.5.[1]

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 20 of this Announcent, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University. A dent who has a degree from an approved college may enter with an average de of 3.0.

BUILDING

The Law Building was renamed Altgeld Hall in 1940 in honor of Jo
Peter Altgeld, who as Governor of Illinois and a member of the Boa of Trustees of the University of Illinois from 1893 to 1897 was instr mental in the founding of the College of Law. Constructed of Mi nesota sandstone, the building is of modern Romanesque style. On t first floor are two large classrooms and lockers for students. On t second floor are one faculty office, a faculty reading room, an office f the Moot-Court Competition Board, and two large reading roo with a seating capacity of 175 persons. The library delivery roo on this floor, is open to the roof. The entrance to the book sta is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative a faculty offices, the office of the Board of Student Editors of t Illinois Bar Journal, two small classrooms, and an assembly room wi a seating capacity of 350 persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 72,000 volumes, includi the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferi federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both offic edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the publish decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Iris Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the cu rent statute law of the United States, the several states, and Gre Britain; it contains over 4,800 volumes of older compilations and se sion laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, diges legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, a 5,500 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred twen periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently us are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, maki them easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library are attractive designed and furnished. The tables are equipped with a serviceab system of fluorescent lighting.

Law students may also use the general University Library whi has a collection of over 1,200,000 volumes, and which is the large state university library in the United States.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the College is to train students for the practi of law. This task, as this College conceives its responsibility, involv much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formula

The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

The faculty recognizes that not all of the graduates of the College of Law will practice law. Some, perhaps many, will go into government service; some will become judges, legislators, or teachers of law; and a few will become leaders of public thought. The course of study has been shaped with that in mind, and to the end that it may inspire a consciousness of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational development and improvement of the law both in its substance and in its administration.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction, involving the thorough analysis of selected cases and statutes and the discussion of legal principles deduced therefrom, is chiefly employed, especially in the first and second years of the law course. This method, which is followed by the leading law schools of the country, has the merit of introducing students to the materials they will use in the practice of law, and of teaching them to make discriminations and to reason by analogy. However, in order to give perspective on the legal system and the place of cases in it, and to broaden and enrich this program, the faculty employs, wherever feasible, the seminar method of instruction. Legal materials are studied in the context of the disciplines related to law, and the student is taught to seek an understanding of legal principles in the light of the forces that create them. Several advanced courses are taught by the seminar method.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and o consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the curriculum leading toward degrees in both iberal arts and law, or commerce and law, or agriculture and law, must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such tudents are urged to complete all of these requirements before enter-ng the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire ime to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond hose subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from mong the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American a English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particular logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

Most students in their pre-legal work emphasize courses in t social sciences. These provide an excellent background for law, a students carrying majors in other fields should take as much work possible in the social sciences. The curriculum in the General Divisi of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers an exceptional well-balanced program for pre-legal students. Attention is also called the fact that engineering and law, agriculture and law, and chemist and law are very good combinations in the preparation they give f special fields of practice.

OPTIONAL PROGRAMS IN LAW

The student may choose one of two programs. (1) He may pursue h college course for at least three years and then enter the three-ye curriculum in law. If he follows that program, and if he has spent least one year in residence as an undergraduate in the University Illinois, thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, or thirt hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in either the Colleg of Commerce and Business Administration or the College of Agr culture. In this manner he may secure in six years both the degree A.B. or B.S. and a degree in law. (See Annual Register of the Un versity for statements of the regulations in the College of Liberal Art and Sciences, the College of Commerce and Business Administratio and the College of Agriculture.) A candidate for both degrees in th curriculum must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, an also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college as th college may require.

(2) Or the student may pursue his college course for a minimum two years and then enter the four-year curriculum in law. If he fo lows that program, he can, after two years in the College of Law secure a degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, and in two addition years a professional degree in law (LL.B. or J.D.). In this curriculu he will be required to register in a number of courses particularl designed for it.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student in the Three-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees i the three-year law curriculum:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges an universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grad average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

As a Regular Student in the Four-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the four-year curriculum in law:

Students who have completed in residence one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college of the University of Illinois, or one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college approved by the University, and who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.5.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the College of Law from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the College of Law from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the College of Law until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the equirements for admission to this College may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the chool and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will e given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade en per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of rading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

Students in Other Colleges Electing Law Courses

student registered in another college of the University who is quali-ed to enroll in either the three- or the four-year curriculum may ect courses in the College of Law, provided that no fewer than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the courses to b taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to tak more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College o Law and thus become subject to its regulations.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or uni-ersity, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of stu-ents in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See state-ent under Scholarship Requirements, p. 20 of this Announcement, on the ethod of computing grade averages used by this University.

PROGRAM OF LAW COURSES

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full time he may not register for more without special permission.

37. Seminar in Criminal Law Administration and Procedure.—Harno, Cases on Criminal Law and Procedure (2d ed.), and other materials. Problems in the administration of the criminal law. A study of criminal procedure from arrest to the end of the prosecution in a court of review, with emphasis on procedure as a device for social regulation, and including an appraisal of aims and workings of probation, parole, and executive clemency. S, (2). Professor WEISIGER.

38. Future Interests and Restraints Upon Alienation.—Powell, Cases on Future Interests (2d ed.), and selected cases. A study of the various types of future interests in real and personal property recognized by law, and of the rules which determine the validity and effect of future limitations; of restraints upon the alienation of property interests; and trusts for the accumulation of income. S, (4). Professor SCHNEBLY.

40. Seminar in Bankruptcy.—A study of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898 with special studies and reports thereon and upon the economic, legal, and administrative problems involved in the recent extension of the scope of bankruptcy legislation. (Not given in 1943-1944.) I, (2). Professor BRITTON.

45. Use of Law Books.—Weisiger, Manual for the Use of Law Books (3rd ed.). Practice in the library in the use of statutes, reports, digests, encyclopedias, annotated cases, citation books, reference tables, indices, and textbooks. II, (1). Professor WEISIGER.

50. Seminar in Labor Law.—Problems in industrial relations concerning labor including consideration of recent federal legislation and code provisions. II, (2). Professor WEISIGER.

52. Law of Oil and Gas.—Summers, Cases on Oil and Gas. Nature of the property interests in oil and gas; legal interests created by oil and gas leases; validity of leases; the habendum clause; the drilling and rental clauses; assignments of the interest of the lessor and lessee; rents and royalties. (Not given in 1943-1944.) I, (2). Professor SUMMERS.

59. Seminar in the Law of Banks and Banking.—A study of the legal aspects of commercial banking. Individual studies and reports on the contract of deposit, the special deposit, collections, loans and discounts, liquidation, and government regulation of banking. (Not given in 1943-1944.) II, (2). Professor BRITTON.

60. Seminar in Public Utilities.—Problems in public utility law, with special reference to the Illinois statutes. (Not given in 1943-1944.) I, (2). Assistant Professor SULLIVAN.

61. Trade Regulation.—Oliphant, Cases on Trade Regulation, and other materials. Problems arising under the Sherman Act, resale price maintenance and price discrimination, trademarks and trade names, combinations in restraint of trade, under common law and under the statutes. S, (2). Professor GOBLE.

62. Corporation Organization and Finance.—Richards, Cases on Private Corporations (3rd ed. rev.). The types of corporate securities and the rights of the holders; reorganization of corporations under the Chandler Act; the rights of various types of creditors and security holders upon reorganization. II, (2). Prerequisite: Law 19, or its equivalent. Professor JOHNSON.

64. Taxation.—Magill & Maguire, Cases on Taxation (3rd ed.). Property taxes and tax administration; estate, inheritance, and gift taxes; income tax; jurisdiction to tax property, death transfers, and incomes. I, (3). Assistant Professor SULLIVAN.

99. Military Law and Defense Legislation.—Schiller, Military Law and Defense Legislation. Laws pertaining to induction into military service; constitutional extent of military power; laws of land warfare; courts-martial and courts-martial procedure; government insurance of members of the armed forces; the civil rights of soldiers and sailors under the Civil Relief Act of 1940. II, (2). Professor WEISIGER.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the College of Law is considerably greater than a student is able to take in the normal course of his program. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the courses in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course must inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of the course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admission to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the College a certification that he has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

FEES AND EXPENSES

Fees

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee of	$ 10.00

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of any subsequent year of residence, except the final year of the curriculum in which he is registered, he has failed to secure an average of 3. in all of his law work taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he was registered; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of the final year of the three- or four-year curriculum, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition.

Degree of Bachelor of Science in Law (B.S.)

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Law is conferred on students in the four-year curriculum who obtain 58 law credits with a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred on students who secure a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in credits obtained in law courses taken in this University, and who either (1) study law for a period equal to three academic years in the three-year curriculum and obtain 84 hours of law credit, or (2) obtain 112 hours of law credit in the four-year curriculum.

In order to count resident study in full satisfaction of the time requirement, a student must carry courses aggregating not less than ten hours a week each semester or term. Proportional credit toward the time requirement is awarded to students carrying less than ten hours a week.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law is granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law or a bachelor's degree in an approved undergraduate college.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, Bachelor of Laws or Doctor of Law and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the College of Law and presented for the degree the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; or an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and he commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first hapter of which was established in this College under the name of Theta Kappa Nu in 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

Harker Memorial Scholarships.—A limited number of scholarships under the Harker Memorial Fund are awarded to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the College of Law. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the College from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

Law Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the College of Law four scholarships carrying full-tuition, and four scholarships carrying half-tuition. These scholarships are awarded at the close of each term, and are available for a succeeding term under the following faculty regulations:

1. The four full-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the two preceding terms in which they were in attendance. The four half-tuition scholarships shall be given to the four students in the College of Law having the next highest averages in their law work in the two preceding terms in which they were in attendance.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both terms, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following year may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one calendar year shall have intervened.[1]

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University. They cover part of a student's fees for one year and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in the World War, or to descendants of active participants in the war who enlisted prior to May 11, 1918.

University Scholarships.—The Board of Trustees has established for each year ten scholarships, open to residents of Illinois. These scholarships exempt holders from matriculation and tuition fees as required in those colleges of the University which admit students directly from high schools. Awards are made on the basis of the scholastic promise and financial need of the applicant.

[1] If a student is prevented from using his scholarship through his induction into the armed forces of the United States or of an ally of the United States, the scholarship will be held for him until he has been discharged from the Service.

Morava Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of Wensel Morava. They are awarded annually in varying amounts.

Prizes

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior law student making the highest average grade in law subjects during his entire course; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior law student making the highest average grade in all law subjects taken up to the end of his junior year.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund; William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation; Grace Darling Memorial Fund; Detroit Illinae Club Loan Fund; Consolidated Loan Fund; St. Louis Illinae Club Loan Fund; Woman's League Fund; Denison Memorial Fund for Worthy Seniors.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the College of Law are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 104 Administration Building. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of th best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who hav attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the College of Law. I affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart i the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the College of Law is an affiliate of th Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students int closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is ope to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All the activities of the association including regular programs, social meetings, moot-court competitions and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

FREDERICK GREEN COMPETITION

The Frederick Green Moot-Court Competition is conducted by selected group of advanced students, under faculty supervision. I affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participat in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winner of the competition. The student who places first in the second-yea argument has his name engraved on the gold loving cup given by th Horner Chapter of the Nu Beta Epsilon law fraternity for that purpose, which is kept permanently in the Law Library.

ALTGELD HALL

The Wartime Program of the College of Law

THE COLLEGE OF LAW operates on a year-round schedule, under which the calendar year is divided into three sixteen-week terms. Each of these terms is the equivalent of a normal semester. The program is so arranged that the student may start his law studies at the beginning of any session. If from then on he attends each successive term, it is possible for him to finish the regular three-year course in law in two calendar years. A student in the four-year curriculum in law may accelerate his program proportionately.

In view of the uncertainties incident to attendance during the war, the faculty of the College has approved various adjustments under which credit is given to students who leave the University to enter the armed services in mid-term. If they leave after finishing a substantial portion of a session, full credit is given upon examination.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

LEGAL EDUCATION has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course, several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This College of Law, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This College of Law was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this College advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by the standards of the above-named Associations. When the College was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, in 1915 it was advanced to two years, and in 1929, to three years. Since that time several changes have been made, bearing on admission standards and on the length and scope of the course of study. The College now offers the following options: (1) a three-year curriculum in law based on an entrance requirement of three years of college work with an average grade of 3.25, and (2) a four-year curriculum in law based on two years of college work with an average grade of 3.5.[1]

[1] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 20 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University. A student who has a degree from an approved college may enter the three-year curriculum with an average grade of 3.0.

BUILDING

The Law Building was renamed Altgeld Hall in 1940 in honor of John Peter Altgeld, who as Governor of Illinois and a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois from 1893 to 1897 was instrumental in the founding of the College of Law. Constructed of Minnesota sandstone, the building is of modern Romanesque style. On the first floor are two large classrooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one faculty office, a faculty reading room, an office for the Moot-Court Competition Board, and two large reading rooms with a seating capacity of 175 persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof. The entrance to the book stack is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, the office of the Board of Student Editors of the Illinois Bar Journal, two small classrooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity of 350 persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 74,000 volumes, including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states, and Great Britain; it contains over 4,800 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 5,500 bound volumes of legal periodicals. Two hundred twenty periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently used are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, making them easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library are attractively designed and furnished. The tables are equipped with a serviceable system of fluorescent lighting.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,800,000 volumes, and which is the largest state university library in the United States.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the College is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this College conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas.

The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

The faculty recognizes that not all of the graduates of the College of Law will practice law. Some, perhaps many, will go into government service; some will become judges, legislators, or teachers of law; and a few will become leaders of public thought. The course of study has been shaped with that in mind, and to the end that it may inspire a consciousness of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational development and improvement of the law both in its substance and in its administration.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction, involving the thorough analysis of selected cases and statutes and the discussion of legal principles deduced therefrom, is chiefly employed, especially in the first and second years of the law course. This method, which is followed by the leading law schools of the country, has the merit of introducing students to the materials they will use in the practice of law, and of teaching them to make discriminations and to reason by analogy. However, in order to give perspective on the legal system and the place of cases in it, and to broaden and enrich this program, the faculty employs, wherever feasible, the seminar method of instruction. Legal materials are studied in the context of the disciplines related to law, and the student is taught to seek an understanding of legal principles in the light of the forces that create them. Several advanced courses are taught by the seminar method.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and to consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the curriculum leading toward degrees in both liberal arts and law, or commerce and law, or agriculture and law, must exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirements of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such students are urged to complete all of these requirements before entering the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire time to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond those subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from among the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; and accountancy.

Most students in their pre-legal work emphasize courses in the social sciences. These provide an excellent background for law, and students carrying majors in other fields should take as much work as possible in the social sciences. The curriculum in the Division of General Studies of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a well-balanced program for pre-legal students. Attention is also called to the fact that engineering and law, agriculture and law, and chemistry and law are very good combinations in the preparation they give for special fields of practice.

OPTIONAL PROGRAMS IN LAW

The student may choose one of two programs. (1) He may pursue his college course for at least three years and then enter the three-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, and if he has spent at least one year in residence as an undergraduate in the University of Illinois, thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in either the College of Commerce and Business Administration or the College of Agriculture. In this manner he may secure in six years both the degree of A.B. or B.S. and a degree in law. (See Annual Register of the University for statements of the regulations in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the College of Commerce and Business Administration, and the College of Agriculture.) A candidate for both degrees in this curriculum must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college as that college may require.

(2) Or the student may pursue his college course for a minimum of two years and then enter the four-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, he can, after two years in the College of Law, secure a degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, and in two additional years a professional degree in law (LL.B. or J.D.). In this curriculum he will be required to register in a number of courses particularly designed for it.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student in the Three-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the three-year law curriculum:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges and universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.

2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

As a Regular Student in the Four-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the four-year curriculum in law:

Students who have completed in residence one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college of the University of Illinois, or one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college approved by the University, and who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.5.[1]

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the College of Law from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the College of Law from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the College of Law until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this College may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of grading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

Students in Other Colleges Electing Law Courses

A student registered in another college of the University who is qualified to enroll in either the three- or the four-year curriculum may elect courses in the College of Law, provided that no fewer than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the courses to be taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to its regulations.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 20 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

PROGRAM OF LAW COURSES

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full time; he may not register for more without special permission.

Contracts II.—Patterson, Cases on Contracts II. Contractual and quasi-contractual remedies (both legal and equitable) available because of duress, fraud, innocent misrepresentation, mistake, illegality and economic compulsion in the formation and discharge of contracts and other transactions. (3). Professor Goble.

33. Administrative Law.—Gellhorn, Cases on Administrative Law. The functions of administrative tribunals in federal, state, and municipal government, the procedure before such administrative tribunals and judicial relief from administrative decisions. (3). Assistant Professor Sullivan.

36. Practice Court.—Practical exercises are given in the commencement, maturing, and trial of cases. The student incidentally acquires a familiarity with drafting pleadings, brief making, and the technique of practice, but the greater stress is laid upon developing powers of constructive thinking in correlating procedure and substantive law. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (3). Prerequisite: Law 8 and 20. Professor McCaskill.

37. Seminar in Criminal Law Administration and Procedure.—Harno, Cases on Criminal Law and Procedure (2d ed.), and other materials. Problems in the administration of the criminal law. A study of criminal procedure from arrest to the end of the prosecution in a court of review, with emphasis on procedure as a device for social regulation, and including an appraisal of aims and workings of probation, parole, and executive clemency. (2). Professor Harno.

38. Future Interests and Restraints Upon Alienation.—Powell, Cases on Future Interests (2d ed.), and selected cases. A study of the various types of future interests in real and personal property recognized by law, and of the rules which determine the validity and effect of future limitations; of restraints upon the alienation of property interests; and trusts for the accumulation of income. (4). Professor Schnebly.

40. Seminar in Bankruptcy.—A study of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898 with special studies and reports thereon and upon the economic, legal, and administrative problems involved in the recent extension of the scope of bankruptcy legislation. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (2). Professor Britton.

44a-44b. Constitutional History of England.—(Same as History 44a-44b). Required of students in the four-year curriculum. (6).

45. Use of Law Books.—Weisiger, Manual for the Use of Law Books (3rd ed.). Practice in the library in the use of statutes, reports, digests, encyclopedias, annotated cases, citation books, reference tables, indices, and textbooks. (1). Professor WEISIGER.

50. Labor Law.—Handler, Cases on Labor Law. The law of industrial relations with special emphasis on recent cases and legislation; collective bargaining and labor contracts. (2). Assistant Professor SULLIVAN.

52. Law of Oil and Gas.—Summers, Cases on Oil and Gas. Nature of the property interests in oil and gas; legal interests created by oil and gas leases; validity of leases; the habendum clause; the drilling and rental clauses; assignments of the interest of the lessor and lessee; rents and royalties. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (2). Professor SUMMERS.

59. Seminar in the Law of Banks and Banking.—A study of the legal aspects of commercial banking. Individual studies and reports on the contract of deposit, the special deposit, collections, loans and discounts, liquidation, and government regulation of banking. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (2). Professor BRITTON.

60. Seminar in Public Utilities.—Problems in public utility law, with special reference to the Illinois statutes. (2). Assistant Professor SULLIVAN.

61. Trade Regulation.—Problems arising under the Sherman Act, resale price maintenance and price discrimination, trademarks and trade names, combinations in restraint of trade, under common law and under the statutes. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (2). Professor GOBLE.

62. Corporation Organization and Finance.—Richards, Cases on Private Corporations (3rd ed. rev.). The types of corporate securities and the rights of the holders; reorganization of corporations under the Chandler Act; the rights of various types of creditors and security holders upon reorganization. (Not given in 1944-1945.) (2).

64. Taxation.—Magill & Maguire, Cases on Taxation (3rd ed.). Property taxes and tax administration; estate, inheritance, and gift taxes; income tax; jurisdiction to tax property, death transfers, and incomes. (3). Assistant Professor SULLIVAN.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the College of Law is considerably greater than a student is able to take in the normal course of his program. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the courses in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course must inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of the course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admission to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the College a certification that he has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

FEES AND EXPENSES

Fees

Matriculation fee. All students on first satisfying the requirements for admission to the University pay a matriculation fee of	$ 10.00
Deposit required of all students at time of first registration	5.00
Tuition fee. Law students who are residents of Illinois, except those holding scholarships, pay each semester a tuition fee of	50.00
Law students who are not residents of Illinois pay each semester a tuition fee of	100.00
Illini Union service charge, each semester	5.00
Library fee, each semester	5.00
Hospital and medical service fee, each semester	5.00[1]
Graduation fee	10.00

[1] A student who presents evidence of participation in any other group insurance system providing the same benefits as those covered by the University fee, may petition through the office of the Dean of Students for a refund of this fee.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of any subsequent year of residence, except the final year of the curriculum in which he is registered, he has failed to secure an average of 3. in all of his law work taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he was registered; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of the final year of the three- or four-year curriculum, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition.

[1] For residents of Illinois; non-residents pay $200.00 for two semesters.

Degree of Bachelor of Science in Law (B.S.)

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Law is conferred on students in the four-year curriculum who obtain 58 law credits with a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred on students who secure a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in credits obtained in law courses taken in this University, and who either (1) study law for a period equal to three academic years in the three-year curriculum and obtain 84 hours of law credit, or (2) obtain 112 hours of law credit in the four-year curriculum.

In order to count resident study in full satisfaction of the time requirement, a student must carry courses aggregating not less than ten hours a week each semester or term. Proportional credit toward the time requirement is awarded to students carrying less than ten hours a week.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law is granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law or a bachelor's degree in an approved undergraduate college.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, Bachelor of Laws or Doctor of Law and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the College of Law and presented for the degree the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first chapter of which was established in this College under the name of Theta Kappa Nu in 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

Harker Memorial Scholarships.—A limited number of scholarships under the Harker Memorial Fund are awarded to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the College of Law. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the College from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

Law Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the College of Law a number of full-tuition scholarships, not exceeding four, and an additional number of half-tuition scholarships, not exceeding four. These scholarships are awarded at the close of each semester, and are available for a succeeding semester under the following faculty regulations:

1. The scholarships shall be given to the students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the two preceding semesters in which they were in attendance.
2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.
3. A student who does not return the following semester may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one calendar year shall have intervened.[1]

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. The nomination must be received by the President of the University not later than the first Monday in July. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

State Military Scholarships.—By an Act of the General Assembly, scholarships are provided for World War veterans who, at the time of their enlistment, were residents of Illinois or students in the University of Illinois. These scholarships exempt the holders from matriculation and tuition fees.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University. They cover part of a student's fees for one year and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in World War I, or to descendants of active participants in that war.

[1] If a student is prevented from using his scholarship through his induction into the armed forces of the United States or of an ally of the United States, the scholarship will be held for him until he has been discharged from the Service.

University Scholarships.—The Board of Trustees has established for each year ten scholarships, open to residents of Illinois. These scholarships exempt holders from matriculation and tuition fees as required in those colleges of the University which admit students directly from high schools. Awards are made on the basis of the scholastic promise and financial need of the applicant.

Prizes

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior law student making the highest average grade in law subjects during his entire course; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior law student making the highest average grade in all law subjects taken up to the end of his junior year.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund; William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation; Grace Darling Memorial Fund; Detroit Illinae Club Loan Fund; Consolidated Loan Fund; St. Louis Illinae Club Loan Fund; Woman's League Fund; Denison Memorial Fund for Worthy Seniors.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the College of Law are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 104 Administration Building. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of the best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who have attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the College of Law. It affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart in the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the College of Law is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot-court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

FREDERICK GREEN COMPETITION

The Frederick Green Moot-Court Competition is conducted by a selected group of advanced students, under faculty supervision. It affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participate in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winners of the competition. The student who places first in the second-year argument has his name engraved on the gold loving cup given by the Horner Chapter of the Nu Beta Epsilon law fraternity for that purpose, which is kept permanently in the Law Library.

The Wartime Program of the College of Law

THE COLLEGE OF LAW operates on a year-round schedule, under which the calendar year is divided into three sixteen-week terms. Each of these terms is the equivalent of a normal semester. The program is so arranged that the student may start his law studies at the beginning of any session. If from then on he attends each successive term, it is possible for him to finish the regular three-year course in law in two calendar years. A student in the four-year curriculum in law may accelerate his program proportionately.

Students who had their law studies interrupted on going into the Armed Forces will wish to become reoriented to their studies as rapidly as possible on their release from the service. To those who are released in mid-semester, the suggestion is made that they come back to school at that time and attend classes in the basic law courses. Then, when the next semester opens, they can register and go on with advanced work. Further to assist student-veterans in their reorientation to the study of law, the College plans to open an intensive review course for two weeks before the beginning of each semester.

COLLEGE OF LAW

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

LEGAL EDUCATION has had a rapid development during the last generation. In 1900 preparation for the bar through study in a lawyer's office was common. What law schools there were, had, for the most part, low admission requirements. Some offered but a one-year course, several gave work for two years, and only a few had adopted a three-year course.

In 1900 the Association of American Law Schools was formed. This College of Law, through a representative, participated in the organization of that Association and became a charter member. The Association took for its object the improvement of legal education in this country. It set up standards for membership and became a national accrediting agency. It has had a far-reaching effect as a stimulus to the improvement of legal education throughout the United States. In 1921 the American Bar Association, in a formal resolution, adopted standards for legal education and expressed the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with those standards. In 1923 the Council of Legal Education of that Association, acting as a standardizing agency, gave its approval to a small number of law schools. This College of Law was one of the first group to be approved by the Council.

During this period of transition and progress in legal education this College advanced its standards even more rapidly than required by the standards of the above-named Associations. When the College was organized in 1897 it admitted high school graduates to its courses. In 1911 the entrance requirement was increased to one year of college work, in 1915 it was advanced to two years, and in 1929, to three years. Since that time several changes have been made, bearing on admission standards and on the length and scope of the course of study. The College now offers the following options: (1) a three-year curriculum in law based on an entrance requirement of three years of college work[1] with an average grade of 3.25, and (2) a four-year curriculum in law based on two years of college work with an average grade of 3.5.[2]

[1] Veterans of World War II who have been in active service for at least twelve months and who meet a high standard of scholarship may enter the three-year program with two years of college work. See statement, "Admission of Veterans," p. 14.

[2] See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 22 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University. A student who has a degree from an approved college may enter the three-year curriculum with an average grade of 3.0.

BUILDING

The Law Building was renamed Altgeld Hall in 1940 in honor of John Peter Altgeld, who as Governor of Illinois and a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois from 1893 to 1897 was instrumental in the founding of the College of Law. Constructed of Minnesota sandstone, the building is of modern Romanesque style. On the first floor are two large classrooms and lockers for students. On the second floor are one faculty office, a faculty reading room, an office for the Moot-Court Competition Board, and two large reading rooms with a seating capacity of 175 persons. The library delivery room, on this floor, is open to the roof. The entrance to the book stack is from this floor. On the third floor are the administrative and faculty offices, the office of the Board of Student Editors of the Illinois Bar Journal, two small classrooms, and an assembly room with a seating capacity of 350 persons.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The Law Library contains approximately 76,000 volumes, including the reports of the United States Supreme Court and of the inferior federal courts, reports of the state courts of last resort in both official edition and National Reporter System, practically all of the published decisions of inferior state courts, and most of the English, Irish, Scotch, and British Colonial reports. In addition it contains the current statute law of the United States, the several states, and Great Britain; it contains over 7,400 volumes of older compilations and session laws. It has an extensive collection of encyclopedias, digests, legal services, treatises, textbooks and bar association reports, and 5,800 bound volumes of legal periodicals. One hundred seventy-five periodicals are received currently.

A total of about 13,500 volumes of the reports most frequently used are placed upon open shelves in the general reading rooms, making them easily accessible to the students.

The general reading rooms of the Law Library are attractively designed and furnished. The tables are equipped with a serviceable system of fluorescent lighting.

Law students may also use the general University Library which has a collection of over 1,800,000 volumes, and which is the largest state university library in the United States.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the College is to train students for the practice of law. This task, as this College conceives its responsibility, involves much more than the study and learning of legal rules and formulas.

The faculty seeks, among its objectives, to impress on students the value of a discriminative use of legal materials, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the purpose of law in the social order and the necessity of its growth to the end that it will keep pace with changing conditions. This process involves a study of the decisions of the courts; it also includes the stressing of social and economic factors as forces contributing to and influencing legal decisions and trends in the law.

The faculty recognizes that not all of the graduates of the College of Law will practice law. Some, perhaps many, will go into government service; some will become judges, legislators, or teachers of law; and a few will become leaders of public thought. The course of study has been shaped with that in mind, and to the end that it may inspire a consciousness of the responsibility of the lawyer to society for the rational development and improvement of the law both in its substance and in its administration.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction, involving the thorough analysis of selected cases and statutes and the discussion of legal principles deduced therefrom, is chiefly employed, especially in the first and second years of the law course. This method, which is followed by the leading law schools of the country, has the merit of introducing students to the materials they will use in the practice of law, and of teaching them to make discriminations and to reason by analogy. However, in order to give perspective on the legal system and the place of cases in it, and to broaden and enrich this program, the faculty employs, wherever feasible, the seminar method of instruction. Legal materials are studied in the context of the disciplines related to law, and the student is taught to seek an understanding of legal principles in the light of the forces that create them. Several advanced courses are taught by the seminar method.

PRE-LEGAL COURSE

Students are advised to plan their pre-legal college work with care and o consult members of the law faculty in regard to their plans.

Students taking the curriculum leading toward degrees in both iberal arts and law, or commerce and law, or agriculture and law, nust exercise care to comply with the group, major, and minor requirenents of the college in which their pre-legal work is taken. Such tudents are urged to complete all of these requirements before enterng the College of Law in order that they may devote their entire ime to the first year of the law curriculum.

The prospective law student is advised to choose his work, beyond hose subjects prescribed in the college in which he is registered, from mong the following fields: English, with special emphasis on rhetoric and speech; political science; history, with emphasis on American and English constitutional history; economics; philosophy, and particularly logic; Latin; psychology; sociology; mathematics; and accountancy.[1]

U. OF ILL. LIB.

Most students in their pre-legal work emphasize courses in the social sciences. These provide an excellent background for law, and students carrying majors in other fields should take as much work as possible in the social sciences. The curriculum in the Division of General Studies of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a well-balanced program for pre-legal students. Attention is also called to the fact that engineering and law, agriculture and law, and chemistry and law are very good combinations in the preparation they give for special fields of practice.

[1] In 1945 Dean Arthur T. Vanderbilt of New York presented "A Report on Prelegal Education" to the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and to the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association. This report is too long to be reproduced here, but it should be read by every prospective law student. The following summary of it was made by a committee of the Association of American Colleges:

"Your Committee calls special attention to five principal points made in the report, with each one of which it is in hearty accord:

> "1. The report holds that prelegal education is more than a matter of certain courses or of particular extracurricular activities or of a certain number of years of study. In the words of Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, 'the emphasis should be on the intellectual discipline which the student derives from courses and by particular teachers, rather than on the selection of particular subjects without reference to the way in which they are taught.'
> "2. There is a preponderating desire among practicing lawyers and judges to move forward in education to meet new conditions of life — an attitude which, as the report points out, is quite the reverse of the generally charged conservatism of the bar.
> "3. There is unanimous opposition to required courses in prelegal training. The list of subjects given below is a list of recommended subjects. None is a required subject. Mr. Vanderbilt circulated a questionnaire and received responses from 118 distinguished lawyers and judges as to recommended subjects, extracurricular activities and length of course. The subjects recommended by these leaders, with the number of recommendations received for each, are: English language and literature 72, government 71, economics 70, American history 70, mathematics 65, English history 63, Latin 60, logic 56, philosophy 50, accounting 47, American literature 45, physics 44, modern history 43, sociology 42, psychology 39, ancient history 38, chemistry 38, medieval history 37, ethics 34, biology 30, scientific method 25, physiology 21, French 20, Spanish 20. No other subject had more than eighteen votes.
> "Your committee would summarize this list of recommendations as calling for the inclusion of a sound prelegal course of English language and literature and American literature, history with a strong preference for English and American history, adequate courses in the basic social sciences of government, economics and sociology, at least one laboratory science, mathematics (strongly emphasized), courses in philosophy, ethics and logic, accounting (a relatively new and important subject for lawyers), psychology and a foreign language, preferably Latin.
> "4. There is hearty concurrence among those responding to Mr. Vanderbilt's questionnaire on the importance of such extracurricular activities as develop capacity for independent thought and action, especially when they involve training in expression.
> "5. The great weight of this legal and judicial opinion believes that the present minimum requirement for admission to law school of a two-year college course is inadequate and should be extended to three years, and as soon as practicable, to four years."

OPTIONAL PROGRAMS IN LAW

The student may choose one of two programs. (1) He may pursue his college course for at least three years (see p. 14 for modifications of the pre-legal program for veterans) and then enter the three-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, and if he has spent at least one year in residence as an undergraduate in the University of Illinois, thirty-two hours of law may be credited toward the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, or thirty hours toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in either the College of Commerce and Business Administration or the College of Agriculture. In this manner he may secure in six years both the degree of A.B. or B.S. and a degree in law. (See Annual Register of the University for statements of the regulations in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the College of Commerce and Business Administration, and the College of Agriculture.) A candidate for both degrees in this curriculum must in his fourth year register in the College of Law, and also register or file a copy of his study-list in his other college as that college may require.

(2) Or the student may pursue his college course for a minimum of two years and then enter the four-year curriculum in law. If he follows that program, he can, after two years in the College of Law, secure a degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, and in two additional years a professional degree in law (LL.B. or J.D.). In this curriculum he will be required to register in a number of courses particularly designed for it.

ADMISSION

As a Regular Student in the Three-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the three-year law curriculum:

1. Graduates of the University of Illinois and of other colleges and universities of approved standing who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.0 in all work submitted for their degrees.
2. Students of senior standing in the University of Illinois and in other approved colleges and universities who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.25.[1]

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 22 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

As a Regular Student in the Four-Year Curriculum

The following persons will be admitted as candidates for law degrees in the four-year curriculum in law:

Students who have completed in residence one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college of the University of Illinois, or one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree in a college approved by the University, and who have achieved a weighted grade average of at least 3.5.[1]

Admission of Veterans

Veterans of World War II will be admitted as candidates for law degrees:

1. To either the three- or the four-year law curriculum described above, on meeting their respective requirements for admission.

In satisfying the regular admission requirements for either curriculum, veterans may count credit acceptable to the University of Illinois, based on an evaluation of educational experience, general educational development, and correspondence work taken while in the Armed Forces, provided that the total credit offered for admission meets both the qualitative and quantitative requirements stated respectively for admission to those curricula, and provided further that the applicant for admission has completed at least one year's work in residence in the University of Illinois or in a college approved by the University.

2. To the three-year law curriculum on satisfying the following requirements:

a. Active service since September 16, 1940, in the military or naval forces of the United States or one of its co-belligerents, for a period of at least twelve months and discharge or release therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable;

b. Attendance in residence for a period of two years, equal to at least four semesters, in a college of the University of Illinois or in a college or university of approved standing, and the completion in residence of one-half of the number of hours required for a bachelor's degree by a college of the University or a college approved by the University; and

c. Attainment of a weighted grade average in college work of at least 4.0; or attainment of a weighted grade average in college work of at least 3.5[1] and passing an examination approved by the faculty of the College of Law.

In meeting the requirements of (a) and (b) above, the period a veteran was assigned for a course of education or training under the Army Specialized Training Program or the Navy College Training Program or as a cadet or midshipman in one of the service academies may be counted in satisfaction of either the requirement for resident study in an approved college or university or the requirement of one year's active military or naval service, but not both.

[1] When a student offers for admission work done at another college or university, the equivalency of his weighted grade average to that required of students in this University is determined by the University of Illinois. See statement under Scholarship Requirements, p. 22 of this Announcement, on the method of computing grade averages used by this University.

Directions to Candidates for Admission

A student seeking admission to the College of Law from another college or university must file with the Registrar of the University (1) a complete transcript of his record, and (2) a certificate of honorable dismissal or a statement that he holds a degree from the institution from which he comes. These papers should be sent to the Registrar at as early a date as possible. A student seeking admission to the College of Law from one of the undergraduate colleges of this University should notify the Registrar of the University of this fact promptly upon compliance with the requirements for admission. No student will be allowed to register in the College of Law until he has obtained a permit to enter.

Veterans who wish college credit for courses taken or work done while in the Armed Forces are advised to assemble their complete records, including information on courses and examinations they have completed under the Armed Forces Institute program and information on service schools attended, and forward these materials for evaluation to Mr. G. P. Tuttle, Registrar of the University. Veterans are also advised, before registering for the first time in the University, to consult for helpful suggestions Dr. S. E. Glenn, Director of the University's Division of Special Services for Veterans.

Advanced Standing

Students from law schools of approved standing who comply with the requirements for admission to this College may receive by transfer not to exceed two years of credit. The amount of credit given for work taken in another school is conditioned upon the standards of the school and the grades the student has received. As a rule, credit will be given only in subjects in which the applicant has secured a grade ten per cent above the passing mark; or, where the letter system of grading is employed, one letter above the passing grade.

Students in Other Colleges Electing Law Courses

A student registered in another college of the University who is qualified to enroll in either the three- or the four-year curriculum may elect courses in the College of Law, provided that no fewer than two courses amounting to at least five hours are taken per semester, under the advice of the Dean of the College of Law as to the courses to be taken; and provided, further, that if any such student desires to take more than six hours of law work, he must register in the College of Law and thus become subject to its regulations.

PROGRAM OF LAW COURSES

Fifteen hours of law work is enough to occupy a student's full time; he may not register for more without special permission.

Following is the proposed sequence of courses for the fall and spring semesters of 1945-1946. The courses of the first year in both the three-year and the four-year curricula are prescribed.

36. Practice Court.—Practical exercises are given in the commencement, maturing, and trial of cases. The student incidentally acquires a familiarity with drafting pleadings, brief making, and the technique of practice, but the greater stress is laid upon developing powers of constructive thinking in correlating procedure and substantive law. (Not given in 1945-1946.) (3). Prerequisite: Law 8 and 20. Professor McCaskill.

37. Seminar in Criminal Law Administration and Procedure.—Harno, Cases on Criminal Law and Procedure (2d ed.), and other materials. Problems in the administration of the criminal law. A study of criminal procedure from arrest to the end of the prosecution in a court of review, with emphasis on procedure as a device for social regulation, and including an appraisal of aims and workings of probation, parole, and executive clemency. (2). Professor Harno.

38. Future Interests and Restraints Upon Alienation.—Powell, Cases on Future Interests (2d ed.), and selected cases. A study of the various types of future interests in real and personal property recognized by law, and of the rules which determine the validity and effect of future limitations; of restraints upon the alienation of property interests; and trusts for the accumulation of income. (4). Professor Schnebly.

40. Seminar in Bankruptcy.—A study of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898 with special studies and reports thereon and upon the economic, legal, and administrative problems involved in the recent extension of the scope of bankruptcy legislation. (Not given in 1945-1946.) (2). Professor Britton.

44a-44b. Constitutional History of England.—(Same as History 44a-44b). Required of students in the four-year curriculum. (6).

45. Use of Law Books.—Weisiger, Manual for the Use of Law Books (3r ed.). Practice in the library in the use of statutes, reports, digests, encyclopedias, annotated cases, citation books, reference tables, indices, and textbooks (1). Professor Weisiger.

50. Seminar in Labor Law.—Handler, Cases on Labor Law. The law of industrial relations with special emphasis on recent cases and legislation; collective bargaining and labor contracts. (2). Assistant Professor Sullivan.

52. Law of Oil and Gas.—Summers, Cases on Oil and Gas. Nature of the property interests in oil and gas; legal interests created by oil and gas leases; validity of leases; the habendum clause; the drilling and rental clauses; assignments of the interest of the lessor and lessee; rents and royalties. (2). Professor Summers.

59. Seminar in the Law of Banks and Banking.—A study of the legal aspects of commercial banking. Individual studies and reports on the contract of deposit, the special deposit, collections, loans and discounts, liquidation, and government regulation of banking. (Not given in 1945-1946.) (2). Professor Britton.

60. Seminar in Public Utilities.—Problems in public utility law, with special reference to the Illinois statutes. (2). Assistant Professor Sullivan.

61. Seminar in Trade Regulation.—Problems arising under the Sherman Act, resale price maintenance and price discrimination, trademarks and trade names, combinations in restraint of trade, under common law and under the statutes. (Not given in 1945-1946.) (2). Professor Goble.

62. Corporation Organization and Finance.—The types of corporate securities and the rights of the holders; reorganization of corporations under the Chandler Act; the rights of various types of creditors and security holders upon reorganization. (Not given in 1945-1946.) (2).

64. Taxation.—Magill & Maguire, Cases on Taxation (3rd ed.). Property taxes and tax administration; estate, inheritance, and gift taxes; income tax; jurisdiction to tax property, death transfers, and incomes. (3). Assistant Professor Sullivan.

SCOPE OF THE CURRICULUM—OPPORTUNITY FOR SPECIALIZATION

The number of courses offered in the College of Law is considerably greater than a student is able to take in the normal course of his program. It is possible for a student to specialize to some degree in the fields of the law in which he may have a particular interest by electing all the courses offered in those fields. The student who has no such particular interest may obtain an adequate preparation for the general practice by electing the more fundamental courses in all fields.

ATTENDANCE

The student is expected to attend regularly the meetings of the courses in which he is enrolled. Irregular attendance in any course must inevitably result in the loss of a substantial part of the benefits of the course. It should be noted, moreover, that a candidate for admission to the Illinois Bar must obtain from the College a certification that he has been in "regular attendance" during the required period of legal study.

When the attendance of a student in any course has become unsatisfactory, he may be dropped from that course.

FEES AND EXPENSES

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADES

Semester Examinations

Regular written examinations are given at the close of each semester in all subjects except those in which such an examination is impracticable.

Scholarship Requirements

The grades given at the end of each course are A, Excellent; B, Good; C, Fair; D, Poor; E, Failure.

For the purpose of computing the average grade of a student a system is employed in which the following values are assigned to the grades received: A equals 5; B equals 4; C equals 3; D equals 2; E equals 1.

A student in the College of Law will be dropped from the University: (1) if at the end of his first year of residence he has not secured an average of 3. in his work; (2) if at the end of any subsequent year of residence, except the final year of the curriculum in which he is registered, he has failed to secure an average of 3. in all of his law work taken up to that time; (3) if he has failed in any semester to pass in at least eight hours of the work in which he was registered; (4) if registered in less than eight hours in a semester he has not passed all his courses. A student who, at the end of the final year of the three- or four-year curriculum, has failed to secure an average of 3. in all law work taken by him in this University will be permitted to continue in this College only by special permission granted on petition.

[1] For residents of Illinois; non-residents pay $200.00 for two semesters.

Degree of Bachelor of Science in Law (B.S.)

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Law is conferred on students in the four-year curriculum who obtain 58 law credits with a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in such of those credits as were obtained in courses taken in this University.

Degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.)

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred on students who secure a weighted average grade of at least C (3.) in credits obtained in law courses taken in this University, and who either (1) study law for a period equal to three academic years in the three-year curriculum and obtain 84 hours of law credit, or (2) obtain 112 hours of law credit in the four-year curriculum.

In order to count resident study in full satisfaction of the time requirement, a student must carry courses aggregating not less than ten hours a week each semester. Proportional credit toward the time requirement is awarded to students carrying less than ten hours a week.

Degree of Doctor of Law (J.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Law is granted to students who comply with the following conditions:

1. Secure the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law or a bachelor's degree in an approved undergraduate college.
2. Complete the work required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.
3. Obtain a minimum average grade of B in the College of Law. If the grade is below B, the degree conferred is Bachelor of Laws.

HONORS

A student who has complied with the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law, Bachelor of Laws or Doctor of Law and who has attained in all work done in courses offered in the College of Law and presented for the degree the average grade specified below, may be recommended by the University Senate for honors as follows: For an average grade of not less than 4.35, Graduation with Honors; for an average grade of not less than 4.75, Graduation with High Honors. The honors conferred shall be noted upon the diploma and the commencement program.

ORDER OF THE COIF

The Order of the Coif is a national honorary law fraternity, the first chapter of which was established in this College under the name of Theta Kappa Nu in 1902. Each year the local chapter elects to membership from the highest ten per cent of the senior class those students who are deemed qualified.

SCHOLARSHIPS, PRIZES, AND LOAN FUNDS

Scholarships

Harker Memorial Scholarships.—A limited number of scholarships under the Harker Memorial Fund are awarded to meritorious and indigent students eligible to admission or enrolled in the College of Law. This fund was created in 1939 through a declaration of trust by the Law Alumni Association of the University of Illinois in memory of Judge O. A. Harker, who was a member of the faculty of the College from 1903 to 1926, and its Dean from 1903 to 1916 and again in 1920-1921.

Law Scholarships.—The Trustees of the University have established for the benefit of students in the College of Law a number of full-tuition scholarships, not exceeding four, and an additional number of half-tuition scholarships, not exceeding four. These scholarships are awarded at the close of each semester, and are available for a succeeding semester under the following faculty regulations:

1. The scholarships shall be given to the students in the College of Law having the highest averages in their law work in the two preceding semesters in which they were in attendance.

2. To be eligible a student must have been registered as a regular student in the College of Law both semesters, and have taken at least 26 hours of work of which not less than 20 hours must have been in law courses.

3. A student who does not return the following semester may use his scholarship subsequently, provided a period of not more than one calendar year shall have intervened.[1]

The following scholarships are available, among others, to law students:

General Assembly Scholarships.—One nomination may be made annually by each member of the General Assembly. These scholarships are available to students in any division of the University.

State Military Scholarships.—By an Act of the General Assembly, scholarships are provided for World War veterans who, at the time of their enlistment, were residents of Illinois or students in the University of Illinois. These scholarships exempt the holders from matriculation and tuition fees.

La Verne Noyes Scholarships.—These scholarships are made available under the will of La Verne Noyes to students in the University.

[1] If a student is prevented from using his scholarship through his induction into the armed forces of the United States or of an ally of the United States, the scholarship will be held for him until he has been discharged from the Service.

They cover part of a student's fees for one year and are open to those who served in the army or navy of the United States of America in World War I, or to descendants of active participants in that war.

University Scholarships.—The Board of Trustees has established for each year ten scholarships, open to residents of Illinois. These scholarships exempt holders from matriculation and tuition fees as required in those colleges of the University which admit students directly from high schools. Awards are made on the basis of the scholastic promise and financial need of the applicant.

Prizes

Harker Prizes.—In 1934, Judge O. A. Harker endowed two annual prizes: (1) the annual income on two thousand dollars, to the senior law student making the highest average grade in law subjects during his entire course; and (2) the annual income on one thousand dollars, to the junior law student making the highest average grade in all law subjects taken up to the end of his junior year.

Loan Funds

The following loan funds established for the benefit of worthy students who are in need of financial aid in order to finish their courses are available to law students, among others:

Edward Snyder Fund; William B. McKinley Loan Fund; Margaret Lange James Student Loan Fund; Loan Fund for Over-seas Soldiers; Dora E. Biddle Loan Fund; Joseph R. Morris Loan Fund; Marcus Russell Loan Fund; Willis Prentice Kimble Loan Fund; Samuel and Lydia Hare Student Loan Fund; A. F. Kaeser Student Loan Fund; William E. Levis Loan Fund; Henry Strong Educational Foundation; Grace Darling Memorial Fund; Detroit Illinae Club Loan Fund; Consolidated Loan Fund; St. Louis Illinae Club Loan Fund; Woman's League Fund; Denison Memorial Fund for Worthy Seniors.

SELF-SUPPORT

The study of the law makes such demands upon the student's time and energy that it is highly inadvisable for him to undertake to earn a major part of his living expenses during the school year.

Students who find it necessary to earn any considerable portion of their living expenses while enrolled in the College of Law are advised to carry a reduced program of courses.

An employment bureau is maintained by the office of the Dean of Men of the University to advise and aid students in securing part-time employment. Applications should be made in person at that office, Room 104 Administration Building. No charge is made for the service of the bureau.

THE ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL

The Illinois Bar Journal is the official publication of the Illinois State Bar Association. A board of student editors prepares and edits, with the advice of members of the law faculty, the section on Current Law of the Journal. This board is chosen by the faculty on the basis of the best notes submitted in a competition to which all students who have attained a designated average grade are eligible. This work is an important part of the educational program of the College of Law. It affords to the student a type of training which is a desirable supplement to that secured from course work. A room has been set apart in the Law Building for the use of the student editors.

THE JUNIOR BAR ASSOCIATION

The Junior Bar Association of the College of Law is an affiliate of the Illinois State Bar Association. Its purpose is to bring students into closer contact with the active bar of the state and to promote a consciousness of professional responsibility. Membership in it is open to all students and entitles members to many of the privileges of membership in the state organization. All the activities of the association, including regular programs, social meetings, moot-court competitions, and round-table discussions of current problems, are under the direction of student officers.

FREDERICK GREEN COMPETITION

The Frederick Green Moot-Court Competition is conducted by a selected group of advanced students, under faculty supervision. It affords to first- and second-year students an opportunity to participate in appellate moot-court arguments. Prizes are awarded to the winners of the competition. The student who places first in the second-year argument has his name engraved on the gold loving cup given by the Horner Chapter of the Nu Beta Epsilon law fraternity for that purpose, which is kept permanently in the Law Library.
